

Mon 09 Sep: Deport Vote - Immigration Frustration - Open Jar - Compassion Free - Logical Solutions - Dirty Ambassador - Just Think

It is time for the people to finally get angry. And it involves the insane movement of humans using federal and state dollars. Dayton, Ohio was the first to be a welcoming city. The Ohio Gov is closely linked to all of it. Green card holders should not vote. Make it official with a signed statement. Automatic deportation if you do. The majority don't even want to come here. Kenya and Haiti are in the mix. Voting is risky. They all know Trump will win. Nobody asks the right questions. The Dems will vote for them. They all know Trump is winning. These are real stories. Real ID will lead to grave implications. You will not be able to enter most Federal facilities. Let's not mock them just for culture. Who are the organizations behind all this? Let's review the Haiti child kidnapping case again. They were on location before the earthquake. Friends of orphans and the alternate motives. The loser ambassador implicated with child coverup evidence. Transnational organized criminals are coord

Hi, all right, can any Can people Hear me? Can people hear me? Can you guys hear me? It should be better now. Is the audio good? Audio good? Let's take a look. Clear. Got it? Okay? Yeah, there's a bit of a throttle today. I'm going to anger a lot of you, and a lot of you are going to rightfully show you should be angry. Um, I've had some really good conversations with elected officials, non elected officials, think tankers and a bunch of other people, not going to name names, even though I really want to showcase specific congressmen that kind of I can explain the situation, can't I?

But it'll make sense if I tell you what we're going to talk about. Let's talk about immigration. So as you all know my Well, I've stated it, but in my actions later come, as you all know, I have been focused on the insane movement of humans into our country for a few years now. In fact, it all started in 2015 when I saw an uptick in federal and state dollars being shelled out for importing young persons with various programs. Either come here and see what a summer working here is like, or you're now an orphan, so we are taking you. You are in a bad, you know, city with poverty, because we don't have poverty.

They have more poverty than us. So we're bringing you here and some kidnappings.

So as I was observing these things, I you know, obviously my mantra is follow the money. And there are a lot of people right now who are laying claim to the issues that they're seeing around the nation. We can go through Texas and Florida and remember when they dumped off all these migrants and Martha's Vineyard. But now my state, Ohio, is talking about Haitian migrants that are eating pets. First of all, it is disgusting, the behavior that I'm seeing and the fact that people are now painting all Haitian migrants like that. That's number one. Number two, this kind of operation about them eating, you know, wildlife. Or were they in Minnesota? I think it was in 2018 when the Somalis grabbed one of the wild turkeys. Shit. I thought about that too. Okay, throwing one in a car for Thanksgiving. You know, we're nicking turkeys off the road so they can eat and now in Springfield, you know they're talking about, oh, they're eating cats. They're eating duck. First of all, Haitians actually are known to eat cats, if you stop watching the media. Oh, I want to see so much on that and actually go to just simple, you know, YouTube, you will see that these people, these impoverished people, would other buildings. The President and his wife escaped injury, but dozens of other people were killed or buried under rubble.

hunt, okay, would hunt and cats, legit, were part of that diet when they had no food to eat. You. So there's a cultural issue here. So in Ohio, people are very upset. You know, right outside of Dayton, OH Tina, we mentioned that Dayton was the first city to ever become a welcoming America city. But see, people are focused on the sensationalism, right, rather than the facts. The same operation about painting all these migrants is savages and no no right was even in North Dakota, in Bismarck, when they flooded it. I think it was 2018 2019 with a bunch of migrants, and they were slaughtering their goats, goats that they bought, you know, to eat in their backyard. They were, you know, cleaning it up and doing whatever a lot of other countries, okay, because this is how dumb Americans are. Actually eat cats and dogs. You and I don't our culture, you know, doesn't, you know, comply to that we don't have it part of our diet. I'll tell you, every single one of you may make it part of your diet when you have no food. So these are just regular people. So on a one off, right? Maybe two off, someone went and shot a duck. Geese and duck are really tasty. How many of you have purchased that at the supermarket. I have so here we are, you know, mocking all of these people, which most of them didn't even want to come here. My audience specifically is educated. We already know that the nation of Haiti is occupied right now by Kenyans who were sent there, and they have no money, and they're like, What are we doing here? Like, we don't know what we're doing. Why are there 1000s of Kenyan soldiers there, you know? And suddenly we have all these people being taken in. Now here's another thing, most of these people that came to that same location were in other places like Florida, for example. And so there are programs that bring them there. It is not rocket science to put one and one together, right? That Governor dewine is closely linked, closely linked with Haiti, with his orphanage and school and whatnot, so it's not unexpected that Haitians would come here.

Let me put a pause on that. I don't remember who I was talking to and what city I was in, but we were having a conversation, and I said, Well, you know, do you know why we have all the Vietnamese that do nails? I mean, there's a reason for that. You know, it's almost how all the seven elevens had a poos. You know, Indians getting them.

And here's the deal. I know this is not correct, but this is what they do. It was actually Nancy Pelosi, and I think it was Dianne Feinstein and some other person in California where, you know, we're talking like, four or five decades ago, they struck a deal with the country of Vietnam, and they told them that, here's some funds from us in the United States, and You're going to train them to be nail technicians, and they'll come on a special visa to be nail technicians. So your politicians paid another country to train foreigners to do nails so they can bring citizens of that foreign country to the United States on a special visa status as nail technicians. Now you're gonna be like, This is crazy. Why couldn't they give that money to Americans to pay for their beauty school to be nail techs? Well, we should all ask Nancy Pelosi what she got in return. We should all ask them what they got in return. So that's one. Another one is Philippines. Most recently it was, I think, close to a decade ago. It's 2013-2014. Yeah. So 2013-2014 there was an agreement done with the nation of Philippines. They told the country, here's some money, our federal taxpayer dollar money, I want you to train nurses, and we'll have special visas to work with Kaiser Permanente and St. Vincent's health care blocks to be able to hire all your Filipino nurses. And so this is how they come and integrate and become residents of this country. Now nails one aspect, nurses. The other aspect again, giving our US federal tax dollars to other countries to then tell them, Well, you're. For guaranteed work. And for those of you in the medical field, and I know I have a lot of listeners in the medical field, you understand these traveling Filipino nurses make serious freaking money, and they don't even speak English that well. So these are all programs that you paid in tax dollars to then give to another country to bring their citizens in. But that money was never applied for American citizens to go to nursing school paid by tax dollars to be able to fill the positions. These are just two examples of many side deals that your politicians make with foreign countries. Now one might say, Yeah, we need nail techs. Well, we have a lot of Americans that go to beauty school, that can't afford beauty school, that would love to do nails. A lot of Americans that would love to be nurses, and a bunch of other deals that they strike up. Now, is it benign, like, why are you going to another country to provide easy access, entrance to our nation while we train you, or not, to successfully complete a program so that you can offer services in the US when you can give it to the US? Because there's more to that. So I'll put a semicolon right now. Let's move along to Ohio. I have seen the most disgusting behavior from human beings mocking others. Now, of course, it'll trigger people that they're eating kittens. You all know I love cats, and you all know that I absolutely love duck, and to eat it, I don't eat cat, not my preference. I had accidentally eaten muskrat ones. Didn't know it was I was overseas. This is why you always ask before you put it in your mouth, even if you're embarrassed. I learned that trick after I found out I ate muskrat.

But see, there's more to that.

The question is, why now? Isn't it interesting that this is all happening flanking the first inaugural city in the whole of the United States of America that welcoming America became a thing. Remember, because the city is actually a suburb of Dayton, Ohio. Now, obviously the viral post of someone stealing a pet was a lie, and let's be fair, if your pet is out and about, no tags or anything, or this migrant that has no idea of cultural nuances here will probably eat it, and you can't even blame them for it, because that's their culture. So there you go. It's illegal here. But Did anyone tell anyone. And so, you know, I, I've said this so many times, that Ohio is the heart of it all, but no one listens. But here's where you're going to get really, really, really angry. We all know that real ID is coming up, and we all know that your Republican, how should I say? People that are campaigning? I want to say something not so nice, but we'll stick to that are telling you that. Or you know what? Let me do it this way. I met a congressman of a state, and I said, Hey, I'm only talking to you because this other Congressman I know that kind of nice things about you, so I'd like us to have a chat, because your state is one of the states that is in big trouble with migration. So I said, Congressman, your state has at least amassed over the past six years, 10 million migrants. Oh, yeah, yeah, yeah, hopefully Trump will be elected and will deport them all. So then I looked at him, and I said, Oh, I'm sorry. You must have me mistaken. I'm not a dumb donor, right? And you and I both know that's not happening. That's when he got upset. And I said, What have you been doing to create the infrastructure to ensure that these millions of citizens are properly taken care of. It's illegal migrants.

They're going to be citizens. You guys are pissed, but it's going to fucking happen, and I'll tell you why we have no infrastructure. Structure right now to be able to detect which of these migrants is actually a criminal, a pervert, a rapist, you know, an escape convict, whatever. And on top of that, some of them might not, even you know, have any documented evidence of such behavior. So what do we do? We have a party right now that is very similar to the Democrat party now, Real ID, as you all know, the deadline is May 7, 2025

that's in a few months. That's in less than a year.

Do you know what you can't do without real ID? First of all, unless you have a passport, right? So let's exclude the passport and stick to the REAL ID. Okay, we all know passport supersedes everything except for voting. Obviously, we've already engaged in that. Couple years ago, I had confrontation with voting officials telling me that my passport does not prove that I'm a US citizen to vote and so on. But you have no idea what is about to hit us, and it's about time we start talking about Haiti and Real ID.

So on May 7, 2025 that's a deadline to have it. The Real ID Act was passed in 2005 it was implemented to enhance national security by establishing stricter identification standards, and it requires individuals to show proof of not only legal presence, but other documentation, to obtain a Real ID compliant driver's license or identification card. And this is mandated that you have not just to fly on airplanes, on domestic flights, but to be able to access federal facilities.

We're talking courts, federal buildings, and get this healthcare institutions. It is the most stringent identification that I have been talking about for a while. It's next generation identification that exists for domestic documentation. Now, anything that is federally regulated, any federally regulated activity, you know, I don't know, maybe like campaigns, some some right events with presidents, Congress people, hospitals, court houses, you know, FBI offices, sheriff's offices, because they do get funds. Technically, if you don't have a Real ID, you will not be access. You will not gain access to those facilities. This leads to grave implications in regards to mobility, right, transport, access to essential services and overall integration into society. You will not be able to enter any federally funded facility. That is a big deal, very big deal.

Without REAL ID. You won't be able to use your state issued identification to board domestic flights, you need a passport, and this restriction will require people that are non US citizens to have to provide their passport to travel. So if you are a citizen of Canada and you reside in the United States, you will be providing your Canadian passport to pop a flight to the next state for Thanksgiving. Now, TSA has put the outline of what is approved identification,

but now I want you to think of about 50 million undocumented individuals unable to do any of such things. Not only fly, but go to hospitals, federally funded facilities, federally funded activities and federal buildings, there are two things that can happen. One, they're granted just American citizenship because they're here. Two, they create alternative IDs, which are costly, which will lack the security. Dirty that your REAL ID will have in order to obtain it. Now, do you know what that instantly does? Could you imagine how many food facilities, like, I don't know, like Whole Foods, they've already started with the facial recognition, palm payments. How many banks are going to start using real ID? Almost instantly, all of them will and so now what we have to remember is that we will have over 50 million human beings unable to even do basic things. And I know a lot of you may say, Well, these people are here, so it's their fault, and therefore tough noogies they can leave.

As I've said, a lot of these people never wanted to come here. They were brought here, so it's important access to certain federal facilities that will be limited are, of course, military bases, nuclear power plants, federal courthouses, any DHS building, any FBI building, anything that's funded with the majority of federal dollars, which pretty much includes most government structures, oh, including schools. So now suddenly we're in a dystopic future where we are going to the supermarket, we are getting flights, our kids go to school, and we have 50 million people unable to do anything. Where are they going to live? In the sewers? Are they going to be like the steampunk era? Is that where we're going to have so I want you to just think about that for a second. Think about what that says. Just think about it, state and local services. How? Have never stated that they will require real ID compliance that it only impacts federal facilities and air travels, but a lot of states have started already implementing stricter identification requirements in alignment with federal standards. So and it's done for identification purposes, right? In a non federal context, you know, such as proving age or alcohol purchases or accessing non federal buildings. Non real ID compliant identification may be accessible, and that is something that they've put together for our younger children, but that's only if you know they don't want to be on the system yet. Basically, undocumented immigrants can't get REAL ID. You have to applicants, have to have a US birth certificate, a US passport or a foreign passport with a valid visa, of approved immigration documents. Now here's the kicker this, you know, I couldn't believe that I missed it while we're all talking about elections, while we're all talking about them needing voters, right? We have missed the mark. The one thing

President Trump and every single Republican should be saying right now is you guys are already in our border. If you're not a rapist and a criminal, is going to be very difficult for us to ship you the fuck back. So here's the deal, you won't be deported if you don't vote. Because voting when you're not a

US citizen is an auto deportation. It is against federal law. So if they were for the next 50 somewhat days, constantly saying, Hey, you're an illegal migrant. We're not gonna we're not gonna be able to deport you. We're only deporting criminals, okay? But if you vote, you will be automatically deported. I don't give a shit if you pay taxes. I don't care if you have 50 kids. I don't care if you have integrated in society. Your whole city can stand up and say, you know, Josie is a great gal. She did all this shit, she did all this great stuff, but she voted so she's getting the fuck out.

Where am I going? Give zero fucks? Here's your one way ticket. This is how we mitigate we turn the fucking tables on them because we're stuck. Real ID is coming. Instead of us showing hate for all these migrants to win, we must show that we understand the situation. And the situation is we don't need people, you know, dying of poverty, and the majority of which we're. Literally just brought here as fillers. Literally those stories you see about the caravans are bullshit. Okay, you cannot deport 50 million people. People are just stupid to just even say that your country has been importing migrants on your freaking federal tax dollars through programs. Now, they ushered a shit ton of them through your southern border. And you think that you can deport them, you're not going to be able to, because, you know what? That's going to be ugly. It's going to be disgusting. The minute someone has a slight accent, you're going to be like, deport them. And some people are that crazy that they'll probably shoot places up. You guys have no idea what's in store. We have to start having real conversations. Where is the infrastructure in order to understand who these undocumented immigrants are that are within our nation right now, because DHS and border patrol haven't done fuck all down at the borders, and let's not talk about the northern border. So we have a serious problem, very serious problem. There's millions of people within our border who have gotten like a paper to present themselves in court two years later, and that's if they come okay. And in a few months, we are going to be switching over to Real ID, which immediately puts them in, like basement, gutter, sewer dwelling areas. And we are going to have a problem. We cannot deport them all. And here's the thing, we want to deport criminals. How the fuck do we know who's the criminal you think you're gonna really find out where you know Joe Schmo is from? One guy that looks after gonna be like, Yeah, I'm from Angola, but he's not. He's from Iberia, and he's like, a massive serial killer. You will never know, because other countries don't maintain records, like Western nations. This is a very big problem. So rather than us thinking this, you know, the people that should what the Republicans should be doing, and those that want to be reelected should be doing is creating an infrastructure of how they could get it done. Our president has said, it quick, we will deport all the criminals and we need to. But the problem is we have a bunch of people. I mean, look at the way they behaved with the Haitians. Look how disgusting people are. They're making memes and, I mean, it's funny. You guys know, I like my dink memes, okay, like the honounds Yesterday. I still can't get over that meme. I still can't, but the Truth be said. We need to flip the tables. We need to start talking and saying, You guys are fucking here. We can't get rid of you unless you're unless you're a criminal and you commit crimes. But the biggest crime of all for any migrant that be with a green card, no green card, just a white DHS paper or working under the table like they don't exist.

They need to know that if they vote, they will be automatically, deported, automatically. That's it. That's the message we need to start pushing. If you vote, we will automatically deport you. If you vote, we will automatically deport you. I have made this clear. I remember during the primaries in 2016 how my ex, who had a green card was on the voter roll and they were able to vote with a green card. Why? Because the DMV doesn't talk to the federal government out of here. They've always been cheating. But what we need to start doing now is saying, if you vote, we will automatically deport you. I don't care if your mother teresa in your town, and for three years you've just been a blessing to the city, you'll get deported. Auto deport. Done. That's what we need to start pushing. We need to start pushing this narrative, because everybody wants this war, and you're going to get it, because if they steal the elections on November 5, successfully, right? You know what comes next? They throw Trump in jail. And do you know what happens between Election Day and him going to jail? Right? So you understand where I'm going with this. A lot of people are armed to the teeth, and this is not going to be fun, and let's not get over the fact that by us excluding human beings from having access to food and health care and going to court, right, what is the rest of the world going to say? Oh, you out? Slaves and secondary citizens. You're such a disgusting nation. You know they're gonna pull that card.

And you know what? We deserve it, because none of those countries let anybody walk in there like just like that, through their border without coming in through a program. So we have to show that we're not horrific human beings that mock people that don't know any better, that shoot a duck to eat it or goose or eat a cat, because that's normal for them, but that we're compassionate, we understand. We're like, Listen, man, they brought you here to vote, and I'll tell you one thing, if you don't vote, and you're not a criminal and you don't commit crimes, you won't get auto deported if you vote. I don't give a shit how good you are. I don't care if you have 10 babies between now and tomorrow, you will still be deported along with all your babies. And if we turn the tables, they lost the argument. Because if any of you think that you're going to be able to deport 50 million people, you're so, so delusional,

so delusional,

so delusional. The only ones we can deport are the criminals. I mean, what do you guys want to do? Create an island so we can throw them on there, you know, like the island that they have in Europe, where they throw their throwaways that has an incinerator on it. Would that make you feel better? President

Trump has clearly said he is deporting all of them. They're criminals. He's talking about the criminals your Republican candidates are telling you, deport them all. You should have seen the face of the Congress. I was like, What have you done for REAL ID in your state. What have you done? Are we just going to concede and just give everyone a blanket? You know, immigration pass without knowing who they are, without checking who they are. Why aren't our attaches right from all these, you know, little embassies that we have around the world with a list of the names that came through the border, right? So they can detect and see which ones are criminals, because they're too busy, right, giving people promises of visas to the United States and money under the table, as long as they hide crimes that they have done and remove certain officials. Do you know that our attaches in Central and South America have been busy trying to buy out politicians in Brazil, in Honduras and in Guatemala, to remove elected officials in those countries that do not do as they say? Because that's happening, and I have names, but this isn't the show for that yet. Right now, what we need to understand is that real ID is coming in a few months, and this is going to be a new form of segregation, because the inability to obtain real ID has profound implications. No access to it means that these people that have just turned up find themselves effectively segregated, unable to travel freely, unable to rent, unable to go to federal facilities, unable to eat in some places and go get health care and see they manufactured this crisis. Who forced us to do it because we're so distracted on stupid shit that we're not telling our elected officials, hey buddy, in a few months, we got real ID. What are you doing with 50 million undocumented human beings within our border? Yeah, Trump gets deport them all. No, the fuck you're not. What are you doing? Because you're not. What are you doing? Because you know people, when they say, Oh, we're deported, was like, you know, I even looked at him and I was like, you and I both know, because you supposedly served, right? So you obviously know that we have to have agreements with countries. We can't just go to a country and say, here's a plane full of people. You can't do that. They won't even let you land. And if you land that is an act of war. Like, people say things, right? Oh, and don't think of the real life implications. They really don't. And you know, then other people may say, we should be putting trackers on them, like ankle monitors. There's more of an expense and money that we'll lose, and we should tag them like animals, right? See, nobody really stopped them. Those

Republicans that are in the house right now and in the Senate did absolutely nothing for the border. They let it happen. And if you're upset, that's good, because you should be because I am too, and I know that now there are people talking about this, because this is the way we help our country.

We need to make sure we know who's in our country. This was all done on purpose. Yes, by your own elected officials, the ones that you read, everyone's an idiot. Tell me what JD Vance did. Because, do you know the OP with the whole duck thing and everything that all came from JD Vance's cam, not President

Trump's FYI, and you had the lowest of the low in regards to, you know, journalists reporting on it in the most disgusting way, creating a chasm and making us look completely inhumane, actually playing into the stupid rhetoric that the left keeps pushing about the right, that there's in a phobic they're bigots, they're this they're did it up. No, we're not. We just want our country, and we don't need people that we have to pay to train to live in this country, and I understand that, and we don't have to, you know, give all this money to all these migrants that are coming to buy houses and businesses when we're not giving the same to our own citizens. I'm pissed. I'm pissed. There are people right now, right there are people right now that are serving our country that can't buy a house. But if you walk through the border, suddenly you get 30 grand to put down on a house, and you get a new program so you can buy a house. You know, this is why they were buying up these houses so cheap. Oh, you were not paying attention. And there's so much to pay attention to. But you know, this is where it is. Do we marginalize human beings because they're illegal? You're going to say, yes. Well, I'd like you to sit back and think about that for a second. Are you sure, just on the simple thing of these migrants? Oh, they're just invaders, you know, shooting up a goose that walks around in your town and cooking it up, or maybe even a cat, right?

Look at how ugly people became, these invaders, because they are invaders, and some are were willing, and some were non willing. I'm telling you, the majority were non willing. Okay, this is a problem, because when real ID comes, there will be 50 million human beings that are going to be marginalized, marginalized. So we have to consider the ethical and the human rights considerations, because you can't sit there and preach and not do okay, you got to be the words not just say them. Now, Haitians in Ohio, come on, Kenya has sent their soldiers there and occupied them. They had that bullshit barbecue thing that wasn't even fucking real. Okay with the cannibalism, it's all sensational. You know what? You know, let me say something these pundits that were so on it, like all of them, all your alt media and your media. And I know everyone goes nuts, because, you know, oh my god. Tim pool, Benny Jones, so you get $400,000 a week. What the fuck? And it's like, stop. First of all, all of us would love 400,000 a week shit. I don't see that in a year, even if I tried. But think about it for a second. They get $400,000 a week. That's 1.2 million a month, and all we get is a guy in a beanie in a fucking trailer, right repeating whatever sponsors are telling them, same thing with Benny Johnson, same thing with all of them. I'm just thinking, you know, out loud here for a second, they never funded any of the people's lawsuits, but they're patriots. They don't have to. They like their money done fair enough, not saying that they should. But what I'm trying to say is too much credence is given to people that aren't really of action. Now, many people will be like, yeah, there's a Well, Laura Loomer, like her or not. She actually does things. She'll go and confront places. She will go and get documents. She will actually go out there and put her face, body and and sweat into what she's doing. These people are sitting in a glorified so that's all they get. Shit like, I'm serious, I work on a budget. My budget is like 2000 operating and that's like half of that. I'll split it with, like, whoever's making videos, and the other half I'll keep to pay servers, right? That's all I get. And in the in between, right, whatever I can get to make it look more studio like. Think, think, guys, you're all being cheated. They're telling us all of these things, and they're not real. You can check your state election laws. You can see your Federal Election Commission. You can see Help America Vote National. Voter registration act of 1993 and the 26th amendment. They tell you everything you need to know about voting, right? Well, now you should also look at the real act of 2005 the REAL ID Act 2005 What is it now? 2024, 20 years to make it happen, isn't it? Isn't it interesting how nobody wants to talk real talk about the migrant crisis, and see we have Ken Paxton holding the NGOs accountable. You want to talk NGOs in Ohio, aside from the fact of the well welcoming America thing, they're all little factions. We've got Catholic Charities of Southwest Ohio. We've got St Vincent de Paul in that area. We also have get this the Ohio adoption agency, like, what the hell there's some chick that's been operating there since 2014 apparently making legal adoptions to people that are pregnant and don't want babies, and they're all there. And so while all of us are thinking, Okay, we don't like these migrants, they just all need to go. You have to understand, okay, some of them came here willingly because they're like,

Yo America. Gold streets coming to America. Eddie Murphy, lights, glitz, anybody can make it. I just need a job. There's no jobs here. Think about it for a second. And they have been ravaging our taxpayer dollars to bring them here, with or without their consent. 8 million kids are missing. No one's saying.

Where'd they go? Where'd they go? Where all the children? I mean, I gave you guys the locations of where these facilities are. Have has anyone like driven by in your city where one of those locations are to see what's happening? I mean, in Tennessee, we saw that they rented the facility and there's no kids there, but they're still allegedly sending kids there. You the bodies that they're bringing from these other countries are fucking distraction. 8 million children. I remember in North Dakota when I saw that the State Department said that they had brought over like hundreds of children to

North Dakota, but the Orr said they only had 13. I lost my shit. I'm like, where are the rest of the hundreds of kids that just came with that batch of kids? And I started the investigations myself, and I prompted the HHS, you know, IG report, you guys should go read it. The HHS. IG did a thorough audit of the state of North Dakota in 2015 that I did. Ask me about it. Why don't you guys ask Josh Galion that decided to actually audit them and Lutheran Social Services, these freaking NGOs, and what he found with the Miss king. And do you know what happened to him? Your amazing Republicans in the state legislature passed a law saying the auditor can't audit unless they say it's okay to audit that agency or department. What does that tell you? And here we are talking nonsense. And you know? Okay, it's kind of funny showing President Trump saving ducks and kittens, but it's also divisive. See this love bombing they're offering to the President and all these, look at us, Mr. Trump, isn't this funny. Hall are actually to harm him, because this is how they get the rhetoric of, you know, he's divisive and whatever. I mean, as you saw, most of your American youth, and youth, I mean, between 18 and 48 are fucking dumb. Okay? They don't know where shit is on the map. Okay? They don't know anything. And they just listen to whatever's out there. They think Tiktok is a new source. Okay? So at this point, the only thing we can do is turn the tables and say, Listen, you're a migrant here. You know, you came here legally into this country, which is a big problem. But how am I going to deport all 50 million of you? I'm going to deport every single criminal. I will go through your life with a fine tooth comb. But I will tell you this. I don't care how good you are, how compliant you are, how you pay your taxes, how you got a job, how you volunteer in your community, you could have 10 freaking anchor babies. I will deport your ass the minute I see you voted once, because that's that's it, that's you pissing all over my nation's laws and saying, just because you walk through the border, you can vote. That's how we need to do it. That is exactly how we do it. Hey, the laws of this nation say you have to be a US citizen to vote. Now, not only did you come through the border illegally, willingly or not, whatever? Or it may be, but if you vote, it means you do not respect the country you are in and you are out. I don't care what you have to say. And if we start pushing that message, they all know President Trump is going to win. They all know Kamala is not going to win. They all know we're armed to the teeth, they already know. So the best way to flip the tables is to tell them, because you know, without saying they know,

You vote you're getting deported, even if you're not a criminal. I don't give a shit. 20 anchor babies. You're still deported. You don't have family there. They've all been killed, still deported, but you're a refugee because your whole family was hung for whistleblowing. Don't give a shit. Don't vote. Oh, do you have a green card? Did you vote with your green card? Because see, that's another thing people don't think about. Do you know how many people with green cards have voted? And you're gonna be like, Well, how would we know that it's on the record? I mean, they scan your ballot, and then we have to go into the how many people didn't vote, but were voted for that were illegal in the first place, and green card holders, ha, didn't think of that, did you? Because it could be Mr. APU, who's your surgeon, that's from India, on a green card, working here. He doesn't vote because he's Indian. He's on a work visa as a doctor. But you know, on the voter records, Mr. APU voted. Did Mr. APU vote or didn't he? Well, that'll be easy to figure out. You got a phone, right, buddy. Oh, and this is where we may have innocent people thrown out too. That's the way it's gotta be done.

That's the way it's gotta be done.

And we need to start hammering them down. What are you doing to ensure the deployment of Real ID to be accurately done with ngi tech, which, by the way, all of you're like, we don't need it. It's the beast. It's the mark of the beast. Yes, it is. Yes it is. It started in your phone, and now it's everywhere. So you have a decision. You have a phone too, right? Are you going to eat or are you going to starve? And that's the problem. And mind you, if you do have 20 anger babies and you're deported because I don't know you voted, your anger babies are going with you. There's no ifs ands or buts. Give a shit if they were born here, mom voted when she shouldn't, or dad voted when he shouldn't, get the fuck out. Here's a one way ticket Bye, and we have to have them go themselves, or we could tell them, here's what's going to happen. You won't have your kids. Your kids will be put up for adoption or in foster care.

Would you like that? And all of you are going to be in prison making license plates for free because you broke the law. We can do that too. We have to be stronger on our loss. We have to make sure that people are talking about this, because no one is. These are 50 million people, 50 million people, 50 million people, 50 So aside from the fact that we need no machines in the elections, which they're not backing down on. I mean, how else are they going to steal it? Right? Even though it's going to help us with critical infrastructure like power, like water, you know, or protecting us from nukes and you know it that's coming down from the north, we should be protecting who votes. And the message should be clear, if you are not a US citizen and you hold a green card, or you're undocumented and you've invaded this country and you vote, you will be automatically deported, along with your fucking family, period. And that's what we should start putting down. This is the groundwork we should be putting forward. Because when it, when I hear, when, when he said that, I said, you know, actually, I said, um, yeah, I do. I look like a donor to you, what like? And that took him back a bit. I was like, I'm not a donor, and you and I both know that's not happening, so why are you saying it? You're it's insulting to your voter to say shit like that. You should say the accurate thing. When Trump is in office, we're deporting all the criminals. Okay? And that's exactly what we're gonna do. Every single criminal will be deported.

Every single one

the biggest criminals, aside from the murders, the rapists, the drug dealers, human traffickers, etc, etc, the biggest crime anyone who has crossed that border willfully or unwillfully. Okay, and those with green cards, if you vote, you should be automatically deported. So I would tell the Democrat base and all these migrants, both with green cards, not hey, if you are a foreigner and not a US citizen, legally here, legal here, whatever the case may be, don't vote. And not only that, because the Democrats are so desperate. Listen to this. This is key. The Democrats are so desperate that they will even use your name and vote for you. So make sure that you have an alibi and you post your picture of where you are with location, because if they vote for you, because they want to cheat, and we win, you're going to get deported regardless, because you won't be able to prove you didn't vote. So keep that in mind, and that's key. I mean, metadata doesn't lie. Metadata doesn't lie. And if we put that, if we instill fear into the undocumented and the documented migrants, right, the illegal invaders and the legal migrants, if we tell them, Buddy, don't vote, you're gonna get automatically deported. But here's another kicker, you better make sure you have an alibi on voting day, because they might vote for you, and that's still automatic deportation. Suddenly, you got all these illegal migrants and people with green cards hitting their pants knowing, holy shit, they will use my name and vote for me. Fuck. I gotta do something so nobody votes for me. And this is where we could tell the illegal people that are here and the legal people that are here, right? All migrants, all invaders, whatever. I would suggest you highly file a letter if you want to stay legal here in good faith, and say, I Anna

Maria Vasquez, whatever, whatever, whatever, am not voting in any election in the United States, and file that in fact, the GOP should open up centers and say, you sign that document, then you guarantee that no one's going to vote for you so you don't accidentally get deported if you give the fear back to these illegals that they brought in to vote that bitches, if we don't do it because we won, and you'll be out on your ass. And not only that, not only don't do it, but they'll do it for you without asking you, they're donating in people's name. You think that they won't vote in your name, they will. And Mr. APU, you're doing such a great job at Boston University Medical Center. You wouldn't want to be deported with your wife and kids that are so comfortably situated in Boston right now, right, because they might vote for you even though you have a green card, I suggest all documented foreign residents in the United States put that paper in that I am not voting, just in case their name comes up during the audit. And for those that are illegal, I would say the same thing to the invaders, because there's no way that they could come back from that. That's that's the deal here. In regards to the migrant, we know they're gonna cheat. We know how they teach. I mean, you know how they cheat when they fund themselves, which is fraud, using somebody else's name to move around hundreds and millions of dollars. Do you think that they don't use migrant names to vote? In fact, if you guys remember, ProPublica had gone after me when I pointed out that they just registered people as Democrats for those that don't select it in Kentucky, and that was true. And not only that, I pulled voting records. Did you know that my ex, who's not a US citizen, actually voted in 2008 but I know he didn't, because I told him, even though they told you to vote. No, you could watch what I'm doing, but you're not allowed to vote like I put my foot down, but he still voted, allegedly. So how do we change the conversation? Because this is exactly what they won't expect. Change the conversation. If you're a green card holder or undocumented within this country, do not vote. If you vote, you will be automatically deported. And not only that, the Democrat Party is so desperate. They brought you here because they thought you would vote for them. I suggest you either file an official document at your Secretary of State's office of your state or city, or whatever you want to call in your county and say, I will not be voting in these elections, and maybe take some video, snap a picture. Hey, I didn't vote. I was home. Hey, I was working. Instill the fear into every single my. Parent that they will use their name because they will. They will.

It's done. No one wants to get automatically deported, even the people that came here illegally, knowing they came here legally because they had this idea that our country is better than theirs, buddy, yours, yours was better. You could have stayed there and fixed that shit. You're here in one of the biggest shows. It's game over. It's totally game over. None of them will vote. Every single one of them will be like, holy shit. Even if I don't vote, these motherfuckers are going to use my name and vote for me, and I'll get automatically deported, because we all know Trump's going to win. They all know it.

The Foreigners know it. Every single migrant that I have come across that's legally in this country, the Uber driver, The 711 guy, oh, which, by the way, I didn't tell you that the 711 thing was actually a deal struck by India too, you know, to bring in, to give businesses more favorable to Indian migrants if they came on a specific program that the corporation had with the country of India. It Like It's guys. You have no idea how long they've been importing people. Okay, this has been an ongoing thing, but now they got bold. They thought, if we can bring in enough to stymie proper operations of the state, where they will declare a federal emergency, and therefore we have access to it. We've got control of this situation. That's number one, right? They're sucking off the teeth of your state funds, right? Suddenly you have a federal emergency, then we get funds. And where do those funds go? To the NGOs? And what are the NGOs do keep perpetuating the problem. You see how the cycle is again and again and again and again and again. And so it's, it's pretty insane, because if you take a step back, you're like, holy shit. That was the whole point. They they tank your state's economy. I mean, the people in Ohio are like, we don't have any, like, resources. The mayor's like, yeah, so we're having a little bit of problem with the money, and it's like bitch. You signed that contract, you took them on, you got the payday, and you didn't have the infrastructure. Why don't you talk through Dayton, who's got the nerve center of welcoming

America that has all that cash? Where'd the money go? Buddy? See, that's the thing. Nobody asks the right questions. We just go into the sensationalism part of let's do this. No solutions. No solutions, because I sat on it for a couple months thinking of solutions. Because, as I said again, the majority of these people that are coming through the border don't even want to come here. Some of them are just like, in for the ride, because they're like, Yeah, I got nothing better to do. Let's go. Some of them are actually paid to conduct certain purposes. And a lot of them are like, if we vote for them, they'll keep us if we don't vote for them, they'll know, oh, no, what do we do? And here's what we do. We tell them, if you vote for them, you're definitely getting deported, definitely, definitely, there's no like, maybe not deported. There's your fucking getting deported. Done. And not only that, you may not vote, but the Democrats may vote for you illegally. So you have to find a way to secure that they don't vote for you because you're still getting deported, because we can't prove if you did it or they did it. So this is where you need to come out. You know, it'd be kind of cool. Saying this would be very entertaining. I'm just saying, if you know, one county contested election results, and they actually audited and found, like, I don't know the difference in margin was like, I don't know about 20,000 and then you know, they find out that those 20,000 are all migrants, undocumented, and then there's an argument, no, they should have the right to vote. And then they come out and they're like, Yo, we didn't vote. Like, we didn't vote. And then it's like, so who voted? And it's like, oh shit, who's fucked in the state of California? Now, you know that would be kind of fun. That would be entertaining, wouldn't it? Because you'd be like, Oh, and you know, around that time, they would have President Trump swiftly go off to jail, supposedly, so he can go to jail, so everyone can get upset, so they can get their civil war. I mean, they have a lot of irons in the fire right now, but I digress on that, don't I? But here is a video of one man talking about the issues in his area, and how he spoke about it, but and he actually had some compassion, and that's what I'm seeing so much lack of compassion.

Yes, it's terrible. They're overrun. Yes, it's terrible. You're not used to seeing cats on the menu, or someone you know at the park, you know, taking out a goose so he could take it home and eat it. I get it.

It's like, kind of odd that, like a guy like me has to come out from doing what I do on a daily basis to have fun, because I see what's going on in these streets, and I see you guys. Is just sitting up there in them comfy chairs and suits and like. And I'm getting out here every day and I'm broadcasting this, and you guys are just sitting up there in suits or something like, I really challenge you guys to get out here and do something. These Haitians are running into trash cans. They're running into buildings. They're running into. They flipping cars in the middle of the street. And I don't know how, like, Y'all can be comfortable with this, like, I don't know, like, who's getting paid from this. I feel like, I honestly feel like someone's getting paid from it. In the background, they dropping that. You got a bunch of people on a bus getting dropped off at a gas station to come down here. I know a single mom that

FaceTimed me tonight, FaceTime me this morning at the welfare office that really need like, that really need something, and it's nothing but immigrants over there, and I don't even want to like, seem like I'm coming down on the immigrants, because it's the people that's bringing them down here. Because wherever they're at that's what they're used to, bro. They're in the park grabbing up ducks by their neck and cutting their head off and walking off with them and eating them. Like, Y'all get the highway State Patrol down here every week, and then y'all get like, a task force for the highway State Patrol, and they look for guns, and they look for dope and this and that in the fourth that same people that y'all got riding up and down limestone, doing U turns, pulling people over for blinkers, and pulling people over for, like, going left to center in like, a couple miles over, like, Y'all can take them same people the highway State Patrol, and you can take them in every single one of their silver charges and dodge the rings. And y'all can take them to sunset, and y'all can park them right over there, and y'all can teach people how to drive. Since the highway State Patrol know so much how to buy, know so much about traffic laws, and know what to do in traffic, they need to, y'all pay them. They can go over and teach these Haitians how to drive, because it's getting a bro, I'm getting 1000s of views on on these and it's going to get bigger, and it's only going to get worse. And y'all sitting up there in these chairs, y'all all, y'all need to get out here and do something. Y'all making hundreds of $1,000 y'all need to put on a t shirt and some crocs, and then y'all need to come out here in these streets, and y'all need to go out here. And, uh, I'm out here before the police is like, Y'all need to do something. Bro, y'all really gotta stand on Minutes. Y'all getting paid all this money just to wear a suit and sit in a chair. I don't think, I think it's, I think it's crazy. Bro, they like, We gotta do something. Bro, it's kids out here getting hurt. Like, only reason I even went on here and said something about it is because somebody told me they walking from the school, and the Haitian almost ran into them. And who is getting paid? Like, how much money is y'all really getting paid? Like, to bring them over here? Like, I know it's deeper than them. I know that's where they come from, and that's what they do. That's they country. I don't know what they got going on over there, but they can't do that over here. And if y'all just getting paid from it, and then y'all ain't doing that about I think that's super weird, bro, y'all gotta stand on business. Y'all gotta really, like, step up. Like, it's lame, bro. Like, for real.

Thank you for your comments. Thank you for your comments. Stay safe from their thrones. Thanks for the comments. We'll take that into consideration. You. We got our side piece. Now I just want you to think about it. How is it that we can change the conversation to let them know they all know that President Trump is winning, and I'm going to tell you conversations I had with real people, just to showcase that. And this is from homeless people, undocumented invaders, and that woman actually told me how she got there, right? These are real stories, the stuff that your sensationalist media that get paid insane amounts of money and give you bullshit, reactive narratives, right? Should be doing real stories, not shit that gets you pissed off, right? We need logical solutions and have faith more in humanity, damn it, like people have been so disconnected, some of the comments that I see make me irk completely,

because I understand how angry you are. I'm more angrier. I am a lot more angrier because I tried to stop this a long time ago and it didn't work. Have a little faith. Let's take a quick break from turmoil, from endless pain. You from endless pain, but united, we stand to fight and we fall in unity.

We shatter the shame God, we just let this be our dream to build bridges on walls, to boil in the embrace. Unity, we find the strength to coexist. You see you see ardent angels watch from above, guiding us with the wings. Of love they whisper.

Now welcome back. I know a lot of you are pissed off, but let me tell you something right now in a small Ohio city, the rhythm of actual life had been semi steady. Their average income, not so much, not such a big population. It's shaped, though, by generations of hardworking families who built their livelihoods over decades. But now everything has shifted in the past couple years, a massive group of migrants, almost 20% of their existing population has now been increased by another 20% right of these Haitians that were displaced or uprooted from their homeland, willingly or unwillingly and found themselves in an unfamiliar place that many of them never asked to be In, strangers in the land of Rust Belt grit and farmlands they're accustomed to, like surviving with little, eating garbage, cats and whatever wildlife they can catch, and pigeons, pigeons, guys. I remember as a kid, my grandmother had grabbed a pigeon, the nastiest bird ever. And I remember watching her drown it in a bucket and drowning them because she's like, we're gonna have pigeon for for dinner. And I'm like, ew, I'm not eating a pigeon. And she was like, why not? But it was normal for her, you know, or where I would drive down the road, and, you know, my my family members, we like, stop, stop. You know, there's dandelions. And I was like, and they're like, no, no, we can make something. You know, we can make boiled dandelions. They're delicious, which I love, by the way, right? But we would stop on the side of the highway and just pick them up in other countries, and it would be no big deal. People forget that, because you're so accustomed to supermarkets, right? But these people have different ways of lives, so for these new arrivals, right, their struggle was raw and immediate. You have to think of it this way, okay, we're not inhumane, right? We understand. We've been fucked, okay? Our nation has been ravished. Okay? We don't need to say more on that. We already know it. But those people really had nothing but their instincts and resilience. The ducks in the lake in the park, the stray cats wandering the streets, or even dogs and pigeons are now their food. It's a desperate solution to even a more desperate situation. So if it wasn't out of malice or intent to disturb, but sheer necessity. And yet, people are starting to fracture in the city. And what started is quiet whispers soon became accusations like the stolen cat was a fake freaking post just to agitate people. Agitate people paid for and paid for. So you have to see who started reporting it first, because that's how you can find it. Kind of like I told you with the covid deaths, the first report coming out of China was from Voice of America. The fuck out of here. Okay, it was our own government. But anyway, I digress. So these acts of survival by a few of them, not all of them. Some, you know, acclimated faster. Some are like, I don't know. Other people don't do that shit. I don't think it's okay. Some may have asked, Hey, there's like, ducks in the lake. Can I go get it? And they're like, Nah, man, we don't do that shit here. Other people probably didn't ask, okay? So people fear what they don't understand, right? And the divide between the long standing residents and the new arrivals there has now deepened with high tensions and hostility. You know, blame is being cast not on the system that failed, you know, their own residents, but the system that imported these people without asking the residents on their dime, thrust into a community that was obviously unprepared for their arrival, that they never asked for, right? And you know, while everyone's like, well, they could get food they have food stamps. Food Stamps are your state fucking tax dollars, okay, state and federal tax dollars. You're paying for it. It's illegal. What your city officials did is illegal. Your frustration is misplaced. Yes, you can be pissed when you've got an MS 13 gang running around in Texas with a machete chopping up people. Fuck yeah, you can, and rightfully so. But you know who's to blame the people that brought them in the NGOs. Okay? Now what the residents of all cities and little villages that are affected by this should be gathering their little small groups in their city halls, around kitchen tables, voicing their frustrations and and the system that failed. Both them and those people, is about time you start seeking accountability to them, just like the guy said, you're sitting up there in your chairs with the put on your Crocs and your T shirts, come down here and see what they're doing. And you know, we that's the thing. You know. A lot of people say you can ship them back. A lot of people are saying this, but what if they don't want to? It's the NGOs that brought them, and the only way that you can shine light is that way. I'm sure that a lot of migrants say only 100 came in here, illegal invaders. 100 came in and let's pretend they're all adults. Okay, 100 of them. If you ask all of them, hey, we'll pay for your ticket and we'll give you $10,000 one way to go to your country and you never come back here. Guarantee you 75% of them will take that fucking deal. They're like, fuck it. This country's a shit show. Bye. I can start over with $10,000 in my country, right? The others will be like, Look, my country had nothing to offer. I've been honest, I've been working. I would really love to assimilate and be part of your country. Good, and that's the thing that we should be pushing. Hey, we're watching you. You vote, you're automatically deported. I don't care how good you are. You vote on your green card, you're automatically deported if denied. I don't give a shit if you're the top surgeon in the world, people have to fly to wherever the fuck you are, because you're not going to be here in this country. So this is it. There is no infrastructure for managing citizenry. And here's the here's the double edged sword. None of us want this Real ID, because you will not be able to buy, sell and survive without it. But how are we going to stop it when it's the segue of them fucking us in the first place by flipping the table? If you flip the table on them and terrify them and suggest, and not just suggest, but actually be, be bonafide fair and say, All right, you know Maria Vasquez, from wherever you came from, you came here. You didn't ask for it, right? You obviously have no family at home. You're here. You worked, you registered, you got your little law document. You didn't break the law. You were never a criminal, and you didn't vote. That means you want to be a citizen. Here is a temporary green card, and let's see how you do, and in 10 years, we'll talk, just like all green card holders do. In 10 years, we'll talk, and you can stay here legally now, right? That is how we have to do it. We have to be humane. You have to be humane. Because when I see all this rhetoric of this nasty, nasty, it's just because they're stupid, like I saw two journalists, both female bimbos, coming out to talk about it. What the fuck are you gonna talk about? Say how nasty it is, how they're eating cats and dogs and ducks? Well, in their country, it's normal, okay? In their country, it's normal, and this is how you can mitigate what's coming if we don't start talking about them correctly, and real ID comes, we're all fucked. Countries versus the cities won't be in a fun, fun way. And don't forget, President Trump did talk about those freedom cities. So then you have to think to yourself, who's going to be in the freedom cities that are going to be high tech, highly monitored and highly compliant with very stringent laws. Because when you think freedom, what do you think you're going to be doing, farming? Get it right now. The what, what, what we have to think of. It's not a question of charity right now, right because we need to know who made decisions without consulting the people of these cities and states bring them in the programs that had funneled public money into the relocation effort and have left their own people abandoned, again, not A question of charity, it's a question of sovereignty. Every city has its own identity. The city had like Springfield has survived hard times before, but it wasn't fair to ask the residents to bear the burden of bureaucratic mismanagement. All why local services are crumbling and resources for their own families are disappearing. Remember when I found out that

Cuyahoga County became a welcoming America city or county, I would say I wanted to find out, and I'm still demanding to find out, and they haven't responded as that with what authority did they spend money to be qualified to a foreign global NGO, no one answered the question, how much of our taxpayer dollars and hours of county employees were spent on a program we never approved, and then when it was approved, you had to do all these things. Did you ask me to do that? And hold on a second, the HHS building? You. That they're housing all of the NGOs under the umbrella of welcome

America. Are they paying rent back to us? And if they are, then why are you increasing the tax to cover it? And what HHS facility is there for American citizens now, since you took that away, see, these are real questions, pointed questions, any community, any city, in any state, harmed in this way, the path forward is very clear that they have to fight, but not against them, the the invaders migrants, but against the system that placed them in an impossible situation. In fact, you will find that those migrants, the legal pathway ones, right? We're not talking about the criminals, would indeed stand with you, seeking justice and accountability for all that has been lost, and you know, the Venezuelan gangs. It's like Maduro, thanks. It just shows what an operation it is. Look here. Don't look there. No one's paying attention. We have the US Army right now pulling out Chinese fucking weapons blueprints right across our northern border states, and no one's talking about it. All right, all right. No one's talking about it that they found that we're distracted with Kitties and ducks, which is unfortunate. You guys know, I love cats. Okay, so I'm a cat lady, but it's not what we should be focusing on. We should be focusing on who did it. Why did they bring them and where's it going. So I have footage that I haven't put together yet, but I want to show you some of it. In regards to the NGOs. Here you go, and just a parentheses, Brennan doesn't tweet. It's some chick that still works for the federal government, and I hope they've got eyes on her. So yeah, because his first Tweet, tweet went out on the day that the President actually signed the I'm confiscating your stuff if your child human traffic. Okay? Is it not the the audio not coming through? Is it coming through? Now it was okay. As you could see, it's five hours worth of footage. Okay, okay, so I'll put it back two to take a few takeaways, right? The few takeaways. One, a company that funds ambrosia is the same company that funded GSG, which is Brennan's company. Two, they're doing everything out in the open, you just can't see it.

It's like you're colorblind, but in this sense, you're corruption blind. And number three, number one of all, actually, it should be just pray. That's what they hate. They hate people praying. And just of parentheses, Brennan doesn't tweet. It's some chick that still works for the federal government, and I hope they've got eyes on her. So yeah, because his first tweet tweet went out on the day that the President actually signed the I'm confiscating your stuff if your child human trafficking are corrupt. So those still crossing us stand up on it without passport or Lisa Hello,

Washington, DC is so boring during summer that I like to entertain myself by, well, having some fun with my predecessors.

It's Bill Clinton's birthday next week, and Kevin Spacey is helping the former president out. Hello, it's Bill. I just want to make sure you don't forget my birthday is coming up, right? Yes,

I know Bill.

Do you know what you're getting me yet?

I told you, this is a very personal decision that I will pick when I'm ready. Like all good friends, he knows how to make sure you get the right presence. This booth, video released by the Clinton Foundation, reveals all you know what? Don't I'd really love one of those elephants you're always talking about. Say, you know, for the backyard, Chappaqua, don't you think that could be a little dangerous for our dogs?

Well, what about a baby elephant? Look, we have to talk about this baby named for Chelsea. Now I was thinking, if it's a boy, we should encourage them to name them, and if it's a girl, what do you think about clay? Well,

I was actually thinking of pushing for the name Kevin. If it's a boy, Kevin, will you please just sign my husband's birthday card already on the stage? Here we have Glenn Maxwell, founder and president of the TerraMar Project, a nonprofit whose mission is to create a global ocean community to protect and promote sustainable development of the ocean. Glenn is easily one of the smartest, most fascinating people I've ever met. This is proven by the fact that she holds a bachelor's and master's degree from Oxford University. Is a private helicopter pilot, a trained EMT, a qualified ROV, which I had to look up what that was, and a deep worker, submarine pilot. In addition to being fluent in four languages, this is what I had written down before I realized that she spoke at the UN nine times since the last time I saw her so Prince

Andrew's link to the late accused sex trafficker Jeffrey Epstein. Now a photograph of Epstein's alleged accomplice is raising even more questions, and you can see Ghislaine Maxwell here sitting on a throne next to actor Kevin Spacey. The photo was reportedly taken on a tour of Buckingham Palace back in 2002 Maxwell is facing charges for her alleged role in grooming underage girls on Epstein's behalf, and we are going to create a global community. Because I only see I don't see the things that divide us normally, what divides us, creed, color, caste, religion, sex, age. I don't see those things. I see us as one species with one home and one common destiny. And I don't see multiple oceans. I don't see the Atlantic, the Pacific, the Mediterranean. I see one ocean, because ultimately, everything is connected as we are. But if we don't participate in it, we don't use social media, which is the new tool for connecting each and every one of us and connecting us and our friends across the globe, we're not going to make it.

The shocking development and investigation by the Wall Street Journal has revealed that Instagram is promoting networks of pedophiles who actively participate in sharing Child Sexual Abuse content, and that the algorithms even help pedophiles connect to each other. And the researchers found out that accounts that are actively participating in such sort of content, well, they are advertised using explicit hashtags and when they do actually connect services, and a whole range of menu is offered to them, wherein they can buy, sell and even commission such content. Wall Street Journal further revealed when the researchers actually tried following some of these accounts, Instagram actually recommended more of these accounts to the researchers, which suggests that Instagram algorithms unknowingly might be promoting such content. And now that the report has come out, meta has come forward and issued a statement which says that child exploitation is a horrific crime, the company said, and that meta is actively investigating ways to defend against this behavior. Meta's claim that in January alone this year, the company was able to remove four lakh, 90,000 of accounts that were violating its child safety policies, and that it also removed 27 pedophile networks from the app. It also further claimed that it has also removed hashtags that further promote this behavior. A Stanford internet observatory researcher named David Thiel has revealed to the Wall Street

Journal that Instagram is not right at promoting a right balance between its recommendation systems, he said, and I quote, you have to put guardrails in place for something that is growth intensive to still be nominally safe, and Instagram hasn't the billionaire founder of Tesla as

hold on before I continue, I wanted to say something so back in 2020 when The lockdowns happen, I had stumbled upon profiles on Twitter that had child pornography. I actually wrote an article about it at that time, Twitter source code wasn't that easy, where you can actually locate IMEI of you know, I may IMEI of a device or location. It was a little bit difficult to do, but what I did find was that Facebook actually had protected accounts. Here's what I mean. So some of those accounts that were hosting the child pornography had like a shield so you couldn't snapshot their profiles. So you know the comment that was made by one of my listeners just now, which was they were protecting those that had the child porn is accurate because I saw it, because the profiles of the people that were linked, you know, in regards to activity between Twitter and 2020, and Facebook, I couldn't screenshot it. How do you. Use another phone to take a picture of the Facebook profile. So I had written an article about child pornography on Twitter, but banning conservatives and they were actually protected, like you couldn't screenshot their profile, even their you know, front facing profile photo, there was like a little shield, but now you can only do that. When you try to snapshot, it won't let you it'll come out black. It's like the same technology they use for Netflix, for people trying to take image pictures of stuff. So I just wanted to throw that in there.

I cited the matter as extremely concerning. So we have other tools for engagement on the site, which is how i i try to grow the site. So, because you do own the ocean, I want to work with Google on this case, if you said to you and others, that is, we know is not true, what are the lies that you say? You know point blank.

Well, let's not even go into the stuff they talked about in the interview. Let's talk about this little piece of paper. It's about four inches by three. This is the so called brochure that the Americans were giving out to people who were handing over children. First line, we want to help Haitian children who have lost their mother and father. That is not true. Most of these children were not orphans, and in many cases, it was their own mother and or father that handed over the kids to the Americans, and the Americans knew that, because their translators were translating that for them, lie to new children. Refugees, a nonprofit dedicated to loving and caring for orphan, abandoned Haitian children the Dominican Republic. We understand that that the the organization isn't even yet registered as a nonprofit, and it certainly isn't dedicated to looking after any kind of kids in the DR because that school and orphanage is not set up yet. It is still a 45 room motel that hasn't been converted.

And before we continue, I want to put a little parentheses here. Let's remember that it was then when Governor Mike DeWine in Haiti opened up a school next an orphanage and a church. Number one, number two. Let's also remember that at the Dominican Republic, one of the most frequent stops that Epstein made from PBI, there is a resort flanking the hotel where these children were going. Do you know who owns that resort? Huh? Fawn jewel brothers. They're in Florida. They're very big donors to both the Republican one brother goes and pays the Republicans and and the other brother pays the Democrats. But nobody wants to talk about the kings of sugar. They own sugar, which is in everything, your bread, your food, your everything. They own, all the sugar. So these people facility, and they're walking around in high socialite life in Florida right now. What's happening with them? Has anyone looked at their donations? Is anyone looking at the Dominican Republic and their resort that flanks the airport that Epstein would frequent, and where Silsby, who changed her name and then became head of missing children, right? Is there nobody talks about the fond jewels. Why? Well, maybe the Department of Justice, looking at all these funding of narratives of your alt media, will maybe bring up a little bit of sugar, huh? Think about it for a second. Think about it for a second. Let's continue. This is unedited, five and a half hours footage that I've been working on. Well, Miguel was so nice to put it all together for me in one file about NGOs. Here we go.

Third lie on this single piece of paper, we have permission to bring orphan kids into our orphanage in the Dominican Republic. Not true. The Dominican console told the Americans at 2pm on Friday, you do not have the paperwork. It is illegal what you're doing, do not travel. Four hours later at the border, the Americans were arrested, and then final lie they're talking about, you can follow the progress of your kids on our website. The website is not up and running yet. Anderson, it's and so they're handing this out. I mean, essentially, what we now know is they were around in Port au Prince, trolling for kids. I mean, going around trying to collect kids under the age of 10. So for whatever reason, they could take them to Dominican Republic. And what they we had also just learned today is they had told that guy, David Lewis, they were actually going to bring some of these kids into the United States or United States, or they'd offer to bring Richard's kids into the back to the United States, which, you know the fact that Richard and his wife, that his wife said, Look, do not go to this orphanage where our kids are in the process of being legally adopted. And they went anyway to try to get them to me, that just raises. All sorts of red flags.

Certainly does red red flags, as well as the fact that they were looking for children aged from zero to 10. Kids are aged under under 10. I asked an NGO specialist about that. Why zero to 10? He says, kids of zero to 10 are much easier to send in adoption. You can bet your bottom door. If those kids were going to be sent into adoption, they weren't going to be adopted in the DR, they would have been sent abroad for that. Maybe the DR was a halfway house. I don't know that for sure, though, but certainly you know the people that you've talked to tonight, you can piece it together. It seems like that. And yes, certainly there were trolling for orphanages as well, because the three translators that we've spoken to extensively have said that they also were asked to telephone another orphanage and that other orphanage also declined.

A major earthquake shook the Caribbean nation of Haiti late today it hit just 14 miles from the capital city, Port au Prince. The US geological survey reported a magnitude of 7.0 the largest ever recorded in that region. Reports said the presidential palace and a hospital collapsed, along with

Americans have been detained by Haitian police as they tried to bus more than 30 children across the border into the Dominican Republic, allegedly without proper documents, we had 33 children from the age of two months to 12 years, and in the in the course of the time frame, we had them with us, obviously the entire team deeply fell in love with these children. They're very, very precious kids that have lost their homes and their families and are so, so deeply in need of most of all, God's love and His compassion and just a very nurturing setting. The Americans are Baptist church members from Idaho, and they were planning to take the children to the Dominican Republic, where they plan to establish an orphanage. The group's leader, Laura Silsby, says the group paid no money for the children and obtained them from a well known pastor who heads a religious ministry in Haiti. Our understanding was, is that we were told by a number of people, including Dominican authorities, that that we would be able to bring the children across. I understand that, sir, that's the mistake, obviously we made, is we did not understand that there was additional paperwork required.

You mean, additional paperwork? It's so interesting. Very interesting. You know, I've written articles about Haiti before, and you should go look at them and how Sean Penn, which was one camp and Hillary Clinton the other camp were fighting for territory. And you have to think of your think of it for a second, Sean Penn, the guy that got, you know, the meeting with the biggest King ping of Mexico, when the CIA and FBI couldn't find him. You remember that Sean Penn, the Sean Penn that appears at every war. You know that Sean Penn, Sean Penn and Hillary Clinton were fighting? How do I know this? Because it was in

Hunter Biden's emails, and I wrote about it. And also remember the leader of Haiti that was assassinated, and those people went in, they were all people that work with Sean Penn wrote an article about that too, and it's so weird that no one's paying attention. No one is paying attention. You know, it hurts me that there's so much hate to these Haitians. But right now, do you know what Haiti looks like? It is so unstable, and it is occupied by Kenyan military, and no one is talking about that. All these people that make fucking half a million a week are not talking about it. Instead, they're sharing cat memes and duck fucking memes, wearing stupid fucking beanies, working with assets. And didn't I say in September, a lot of podcasters are going down. I mean, it started with the whole Julie Kelly thing. It was like, Oh, he's a fed. She's doing great work. She's doing great work. So stop hate. But stop hate was the organization that pushed through the fucking barriers with their people, but here we are saying they're great, forgetting that it was Olly Akbar who led this whole shit going forward, let me just continue this for a sec.

From the moment of their arrest, they had defended their innocence, saying they were just trying to help the children, and after three long weeks in jail, a Haitian judge believed them, granting freedom to eight of the 10 Americans charged with child trafficking. But the judge recognize that there's any evidence about their guilty, they are all innocent. That what I can tell you, and the world has to know after these, these issue, that there's. American all of them are innocent, as I promised you, that they will be free. Eight of the of them are now free.

The judge did, however, order that the group's leader, Laura Silsby, another woman, remain in custody. They were in Haiti before the earthquake, and their activities are the subject of further investigation. The group of Americans, most of

they were in Haiti before the earthquake. What have I said about earthquakes? See today, and I'll play this later. You know, Colorado is really, really excited that they're going to weather modify to get rain and seed the clouds with chemicals to make it rain. Yet, the same people that are talking about how excited they are to throw chemicals into this into the clouds and create these chemtrails, cloud seeding to make it rain in Colorado, said that Robert Kennedy is a loser and he's fucking stupid for talking about chemtrails right? Contradictory within just a week, and then I've told you about stomp technology. Stomp technology. Do you not think we have the technology to manufacture earthquakes. We all know that fracking can cause earthquakes, right because of the water and the way it goes in and all the only thing and the only difference with stomp technology, it's a lot simpler.

You use frequencies to mount the rock, and suddenly you got a slide, and suddenly you have a vertical earthquake like the one that hit Haiti. Just saying, so stomp technology does exist. So isn't it weird that she was there in place right before the earthquake? I am just pointing that out whom our Baptist missionaries were caught trying to take 33 Haitian children across the border to the Dominican Republic. It was also learned one of the lawyers defending the group was a man suspected of sex trafficking. Haiti's President Rene Preval defended the judge's decision and dismissed concerns the court had been persuaded by US officials to set the Americans free.

System is totally is back on American soil. She was freed by Haitian authorities after she was convicted of illegally trying to take dozens of Haitian children out of the country in the wake of January's giant earthquake. He cried and she greeted family members at the airport. That was incredible. I just give praise to Michael. Thank you for bringing me home.

Thank you for bringing me home. Salisbury said her faith had gotten her through the ordeal, but she declined to answer reporters questions about what the last three months have been like.

You know, I'll talk about that maybe at a later time. Today is a day of celebration, enjoy my family and my friends and I have longed for this for a long time.

In addition to her family, members of her church also showed up to greater their faithful prayers have meant a tremendous amount to me, and we just serve an awesome God, and I just give all the praise and glory to Him.

Now I wonder what God she's actually talking about here. She was originally charged with kidnapping and criminal association. Those charges were dropped for her and the nine other Americans who were part of her group. They've also been released.

Huma was actually emailing Hillary Clinton email updates on the sillies be Haiti situation in one of the emails, a plan to just take the children is even discussed after being convicted of kidnapping 33 Haitian children who had families. Laura changed her name to Laura Gaylor and worked for the US government for Amber Alerts, a service which deals with missing children. Does that sound normal to you, someone who's been convicted of child trafficking to be involved in such a service? Monica Peterson was the assistant director of the Human Trafficking Center in Haiti and was critical of the Clinton

Foundation and its role in human trafficking in the region. She was later found dead of apparent suicide. Max mckolby served as James elephant is lawyer in a blackmail case against ex boyfriend David Brock in 2008 commerce ping pong wanted to obtain the permissions needed to operate and hold events later than midnight, one man who I mentioned in Episode Five Pizzagate named fry. Winstead claimed elephantis was going to turn the neighborhood into a haven for rapes and murders. It was Michael maccoby that then chimed in to defend elephantis and Comet Ping Pong, claiming that he would remove anyone that got in Comet's way. This all happened at a community meeting, Michael mccoby was the leadership advisor for friends of the orphans, and Max McCoy was the director of Friends of the orphans. Both were personal lawyers of James elephantis, friends of the orphans is now called NP H USA, and is the nonprofit organization where Laura sillesby took 33 kids from researchers noted that Laura sillesby had visited the White House multiple times, and each time she visited, one person visited the White House only a few hours later. Can you guess who? James elefantas has a special privilege with customs, when shipping live art, never having to even show anyone what he is actually transporting inside the containers.

The jar is open. Can you see it? That's the jar. What you are observing right now is the jar that is open.

I mentioned in Episode Five Pizzagate named Frank Winstead, one man who I meant orphans and Max mccoby was the director of Friends of the orphans.

Now please pay attention for the jar only a few can you see it. Now. We'll get into that on Wednesday. But you know what I want to introduce you to you want to talk about the migrants going in there and what's really going on. There's one person that we should ask now. What if I told you that there's bank evidence and this is breaking because a lot of people don't talk about this ambassador. What if I told you that there is actual financial evidence. And not only that, what if I told you that right now, at this moment, the State Department and specifically, hold on, let me get the names. Give me a second. Let me find my phone. You know what? Let me play. Let me introduce you to this loser first, who, by the way, is still an ambassador. There's my phone. Alright, let's, let me introduce you just a little bit to this guy. All right, there may be financial records showing up. Some serious cover up with some child stuff going on in the State Department is going to have serious problems very soon.

So let's see this guy have his financials. There are a lot of whistleblowers. See, the Haitians don't want their kids kidnapped, they don't want their kids raped, they don't want their kids gone. They want to have a safe and strong nation, which is now occupied by the Kenyans. And get this, the Kenyans don't even know why they're there, and they're actually raising money to feed themselves because they can't. Let me introduce you to this man.

Hello everyone. Welcome to Democracy dialogs, where we go beyond the headlines to discuss what's really happening in the Americas. Find us on the first Thursday of each month on YouTube or on our website, www.ascoa.org, I'm your host. Eric Farnsworth in Washington. 2024 is a pivotal year for global elections. While the focus is often on electoral processes, there's a growing and alarming threat across Latin America and the Caribbean, namely organized crime. This Venice not only jeopardizes stability, security and human rights through extortion and other violent crimes, but also contributes directly to a surge in regional migration. Despite progress in some countries, the overall landscape has grown increasingly concerned the spread and diversification of criminal groups intensify these challenges. We grapple with this escalating threat, shared approaches become imperative, and US leadership is crucial in today's episode. We're honored to have with us Assistant Secretary of State Todd Robinson, who assumed leadership of the Bureau of International Narcotics and Law Enforcement Affairs in 2021 all right, all right, all right, all right. Todd Robinson, we've got his financials. Think I mentioned him at one point. Pay attention to who this guy is, who is in many, many, many places.

Todd's a career diplomat with a wealth of experience, who has previously served as investment to Guatemala and Trade affair in Venezuela, and he's also a good friend, Ambassador Todd Robinson. Welcome to Democracy dialogs. Thank you so much for having me. You know, organized crime seems to be one of the most pervasive issues growing around the region. It's a real problem. We see what's happening right now in Ecuador and other places. What's your assessment of organized crime in the region from an overall perspective? Well, you know, it's a great question. Look, we have transnational organized criminals working throughout the hemisphere, undermining institutions, terrorizing communities, ordinary citizens from the United States all the way down into Argentina and Chile, sapping resources and you raised a great point. Ecuador is one of those countries that has really suffered recently. They had a presidential candidate assassinated, a major Prison Break, public enemy number one on the streets. Now what we have been trying to do, what the United States government has been trying to do. And what the Bureau of International Narcotics and Law Enforcement has been trying to do is to focus on the long term solutions, rebuilding institutions, working with police and prosecutors, working with judges, you know, giving them the training they need to see what they need to be looking out for. Some of the best work we do around the hemisphere and around the world is on corrections, you know, focusing on those men and women who put their lives on the line for the for the country to to protect ordinary citizens, making sure they have the training, the equipment, the resources necessary to do their jobs. And that's what we're going to do in Edward as you know, general

Richardson. I will be going down all of that to really assess the situation and ensure new president Novoa that he has the the confidence and the cooperation and the support of the United States to do the right thing for his country. The Western Hemisphere is a really large place, and each country is different in its own way. Have you seen certain strategies that can be replicated nonetheless in certain countries? In other words, what's worked particularly well, not just working with police or judges or law enforcement, presumably, but what are some of the strategies that you find that are replicable? Well, when you talk about in South America or in the hemisphere, one of the countries we look at is Colombian. They really are the gold standard. And it took, you know, a decision by ordinary Colombians to make a change supported by the international community, focusing on potato issues, safety, security, again, reinforcing those institutions and showing them that if they just do their job, you can really make a change. We now use Columbia around the hemisphere and around the world, because they have that expertise now, and because they've been through it all, that has really worked.

You combine the security with development assistance, and you don't, doesn't have to just be the United States, right? You can, you can use other countries. We can. We work very well with the Norwegians on the Colombian peace process. Now, you know, France, Spain, the UK, the Netherlands, they all have a part to play as an important part to play in city and security and development around the world. Those are the kinds of things that work. You know, it's not there's no silver bullet. And you know, there's not any one thing you really need a good cooperation within the interagency a good cooperative, good cooperation among the international community. And focus on institutions. You know, what do we want the police, the judiciary, the prisons, political parties? What do we want them to look like, 510, 15 years down the road? And how do we want them to be able to defend themselves from those dangers to democracy? That's what that's what I know does. That's what we try to do, and that's what we try to do, working with our partners in the interagency and the international community, another prison resonates. I just had the privilege to host our new US, Ambassador to Guatemala, who had experience in Mexico, of course, and one of his key points was, prison reform is so critical, and it resonates. It's like concentric circles that goes out from prisons into society, and really helps undermine democracy if you don't get those prisons under control. That's right.

That's absolutely right. And one of the things, one of the real success stories that we saw in Guatemala when I was there as an ambassador, was the corrections reform. We were fortunate. We have ninl, one of the best experts on correctional reform that I know of, and she was able to institute a program. Am really turning corrections around in Guatemala, and we have indications that the incoming revenue government wants to continue that work. So we're really happy about that. Let's talk about Guatemala and Central America more broadly, first of all, congratulations to the States or to the US government, but more importantly, to the Guatemalan people for getting through a successful election and inauguration of the new president, Bernardo. Are the guests here, actually at democracy dialogs, and really proud to have that opportunity. Absolutely, we're here with Ambassador. So I just want to tell you something about Todd Robinson. All right, Mr. Robinson. Mr. Robinson is implicated in allegations of human and especially child trafficking. He gets large sums of money in his foreign accounts that I may or may not have access to. Some of them are actually professors at universities in California, purchasing things from him for 60 grand or whatever, and they meet each other somewhere in the southern portion of our nation. This guy has been in Central and South America so long he owns their assets. In fact, let me show you something. As you know, there's a lot going on in regards to Haiti and Central America right now. Let's see if I can pull this up. All right, let's see. Perfect. Here's a tweet,

from en me soras Unidas, so I put the translation for you to know right now, two representatives of the United States, State Department visited journalist Jose Ruben Zamora Marroquin on Friday, who has been in prison since July 2022 now, one must ask themselves, what's going on here? Why is the State Department there? And the question is, why are State Department officials visiting someone who's in prison for blackmailing, extortion, cocaine, trafficking and money laundering. It's because he actually worked with Todd Robinson. Mr. Todd Robinson worked with this criminal that is in prison that they're talking about, who they allege is a journalist. But there's one guy. Now, I haven't done much digging, per se, and I'm going to give you a name, Carlos gamara, and there's another two names too. Works at the State Department. State Department. He's currently in Central America trying to pay off elected officials in various Central American nations to overthrow politicians that will not assist in covering up whatever the they're covering up. That's all I have to say on that for now. So going back to Haiti and the Haitian migrants, we look so hateful, so hateful.

I know it's a cat, I know it's a duck, and you're like, Fuck, I don't need this shit. 20% of my city's population just increased with 20% of people that don't understand cultural norms here, my city and state have to fork up a shit ton of money so they can acclimate. I can't even take my kid to school sometimes because they don't speak English anymore. I should bring an interpreter. These are all real things, but here's the deal, aside from everything that's going on internationally and it's all coming undone, I mean, the Kenyans being stranded while occupying Haiti is a big deal. And the one thing I've always said is that Kenya is a front of the Soros Foundation. So why would the Soros Foundation suddenly starve up the money of the 1000s of troops that the Kenyans sent out there. Think about it for a second. You should think about this. Think why is it that so many Kenyans are there in Haiti right now with no money?

And I was just there, right?

And, you know, it's like nobody wants to talk about it. Why has Kenya sent 1000s of soldiers? Why did they arrive to Haiti? What does Kenya have to do with Haiti? Oh, you know, the Kenyans are really good at moving people. And do you know that the majority of the African influx that come through these paid programs for children are based out of Kenya? And also, did you know that Ilhan Omar came out of one of these NGOs as well, out of Kenya, even though she's from Somalia, i. Because it's the epicenter of trafficking. See, it's so weird. They're trying to regain control for what

foreign military from a nation that has nothing to do with Haiti there, and nobody wants to talk about it. Everyone's pretending it's not happening. We need to show compassion. We need to show that we are humane. And I know a lot of you are very frustrated with this whole migrant situation. So am I? I'm pissed, too. But the people that authorize this are the Office of Refugee Resettlement, the Orr, it is your state government in Ohio. Do you know who's responsible for this? Huh? Department of job and Family Services, also known as jobs. You know, the one that I've been talking about that when Frank Larose, who is now the Secretary of State, used to just be in state legislature, right? Who comes from a wealthy home called House La Rose. He's not a Green Beret that came from a farm, right? His dad owns one of the biggest liquor distributors, right? So house Larose created, it is jobs, something liquor?

What is it? Beverage services. Remember, they're a weft partner. You can look jobs, Ohio is a partner with the weft. Okay? They're responsible, because they have federal partners to place migrants into local communities, and then you have state level refugee set of resettlement programs. So instead of people right, focusing on them. I mean, you should for security, of course, you should be banging down the doors of your Mayor's office and be like, Bitch answer the question, Who the fuck paid you? Where'd the money come from. And hey, Larose, what the fuck is your daddy doing? What is jobs

Ohio fucking getting to bringing all these migrants, because state agencies coordinate with federal partners. Who are you partnering with? See when people, when people don't pay attention, don't ask the right question, they misdirect their frustration and you get lost, misdirection, kind of like I said with the Tim pool and Benny Johnson, which everyone wants to hear about. I'm going to tell you that there have been two companies that I have privately messaged that fund a lot of your media stars and wannabes and bimbos, and I told them, hey, word on the street is your fucking company is going down, whoa, we're not doing anything. And it's like, okay, but maybe your guy you're funding is doing something. I mean, I'm not saying you're not doing anything, but I'm saying if you say that, then maybe the people you're funding is a problem, hmm, because there's active investigations. So both of them kind of went dead after I said, Hey, we should talk about this. But after what happened with tenant, I was like, Oh, I guess you're up next, or maybe the other one, but we'll see who comes in which order, because I was right again. Now, I don't say this to be like, Look, I'm right. I'm saying I did tell you a lot of your social media superstars, you know, like that weird guy with the beanie that knows why he's he's got that traffic, but we do know it's paid advertising. You spend a lot of money for advertising, and that's how you get there, right? But he had Cassandra Fairbanks working as producer.

Let's not forget Cassandra Fairbanks was part of Code Pink and worked for Bernie Sanders. I mean, stop, like, stop, stop, stop, stop. You know it's, it's so weird when you see these things and you're just like, um, I kind of said it. Now, while all of you are like, holy shit, these motherfuckers make a lot of money. Yes, they do, and I and I get offered a lot of money. I got a proposition from a foreign country to be transparent. It was No, I shouldn't anyway to prop their tourism. They even offered me a trip and a shit ton of money. There are people that throw the fuck out of money to me, and I'm like, no thanks. If you want to contribute, you can go to my subscribe star, or sign up on my rumbles or locals, or, you know, Cash App me, or PayPal me. You know, that's about the extent you know what I'm saying. Like no, because then you have to tell me what to do. I have a ton of emails that I can, that I can demonstrate where brands will say and this is how much I'm worth. For a 15 second spot, I will pay you three and a half $1,000 and you only have to say it twice a week, six and a half $1,000 just for that one ad. I don't do it, and it's something benign, something stupid, like a drink or freaking. Food or buy my scarf, like a ton, I just don't do it because, no matter what, oh, yeah, or buy me a coffee. Thanks, Jules, um, she that's how, that's what I tell them. When the companies come and they're like, we'd love to sponsor you. I'm like, you could buy me a coffee. Sign up to my subscribe star. Send me locals.

I take some crypto, like, Thanks, though, but I don't want to do your ads. Thanks. I'd love it. I mean, right now, being courted for some, you know, big show all the time. They're like, we'll give you, you know, half a million a month. The contract this, no, because then I lose my voice. I'm told what I can say.

I'm not a bimbo with tits that wants to get paid to read shit, right? I don't do that. And here's the thing, Tim pool's a fucking bimbo that reads shit. He's a nobody. He means nothing, but a lot of advertising has gone into him, right? Because you have to think to yourself, why is he? Why? Where's his point of view? If you saw a thinkologist pulled up, he's pushing the Civil War. And so while all of you're like, Damn these make money. You have no idea, the guys that make the stupid podcast even make more money, the ones that are funded by companies, okay, but don't misplace your anger because jealousy, you know, because they make more money shit. I want to make 400,000 a week. I would love that, right? I would totally that means they're smart. I mean, shit, getting 1.2 million a week for being an idiot and gaslighting the people and talking shit like, you know what you're talking about. Fuck.

That's that's like the American dream. Don't misplace your anger. Okay, don't misplace your anger. What you should be focused on was, holy shit. That means everything they put out is controlled. You don't get that much money without doing things. There's strings attached, no matter what. Now, some will be like, Well, I only sell gold, but the gold people also have an image. Because you have to think, who owns a gold company. They want you to say that. They want you to promote this. You should promote this, or else they won't give you enough money. Yeah, sorry, we can't fulfill that contract this month. But maybe if you advertise this too, or this guy's podcast, maybe we'll do it. That's how they work. So, you know, these people are smart. They're just using the system and they're making money, and, you know, that's all they have for production. I mean, it's pretty lame, but don't misplace it. You all knew who was sponsoring your media during covid, didn't you? It was Pfizer, because the ad said, brought to you by Pfizer. The thing is, the people on Twitter, the people on YouTube, grumble, Twitch, Tiktok, they don't have to tell you who sponsors them. Unless you're on Tiktok and you're selling a product with a link or your Amazon store, no one's telling you who's funding them. They're all pretending they're just like, there, they're all funded. And you can see it from the products they sell. And once you see the products they sell, you could see what companies own those products or people.

I've always said this follow the money. Follow the money. It never lies. Follow the money. So no one can say you're born for it. Fuck now I get, you know, people that subscribe to me and people that weaponize that too. So to the 14 people today, I only got two yesterday, so that was weird. So we got back over the 10 for doing chargebacks on on stripe. Thank you. It'll ping back on your ass. Now moving along, don't misplace your frustration. Don't misplace your frustration on human beings. Focus that frustration on the people that made that happen. Focus your frustration on the mayor. Focus your frustration on

Governor dewine. Focus your frustration on jobs Ohio. Focus your frustration to the people that made it happen, right? That's where you need to focus your frustration, not on the people, because once you realize who made that happen, then you realize how to not have it happen again. I know a lot of people are angry when I'm telling you we're not going to deport them all. It's literally not going to happen. It is not feasible, because then you'll have elusiveness. What we want is transparency. These people came through the border willingly or unwillingly. Okay, done. It happened. They're here.

It's over. Why are you looking at the past that shit got fucked so every single one of you that voted for that idiot in the Senate, this is, oh yeah, I tried, but you know, and it's like, fuck you. You didn't try hard enough. You're out. Or the congressman, you. You know, it's like the Democrats, and it's like, Fuck you, dude, you're working with them, kind of like I did to that new freshman Congressman who had his back up against the wall. And I was like, don't dilly dally on shit. You better start talking about this, because this is going to be a problem. And, and, and I have listeners in Arizona, they will fuck you up knowing that you knew this was happening and you didn't do shit. Someone said, Trump lied. Trump didn't lie. Why would you say that he can't deport everybody, but he's deporting every single fucking criminal because, you know what? They imported the criminals in order to create the chaos that they need. But there are a lot of people, there a lot of people that came that didn't want to come here, or were coerced to come here. So then there's that. So don't misplace your frustration, kind of like when you hear about all this money people are making. Don't be upset. Be like, okay, maybe I can emulate I mean, we don't want to be like a temple. I don't want to wear a beanie to hide a bald head and fucking take money and pretend I'm a freedom fighter. But in essence, I'm literally gaslighting the public. I'm not okay with that. Okay, totally not okay with that. But this is going to be one of the largest deportation operations you will ever see, because that's how many criminals are here. That is exactly how many criminals are here. You cannot remove the illegals. No matter how much you want to, you will not be able to. So stop fucking crying like a little bitch. You've got, you know, a million people in one city, and you know, 400,000 of them are actually working, and they're trying to establish themselves because they found themselves here. Some of them are victims of trafficking that are too old now to get passed around, so they're just dumped on the side of the street. Maybe we should deport them too. They didn't get fucked enough. We should just get rid of them. There are very good people that just happen to be here. There are people that have been abused and then abandoned and survived. You can get them to go to work, but the one thing we have to do is make sure that they abide by our law. And what we have to do, I say, if you vote, you will be automatically deported. I don't care how good you are, and if you don't vote, they will vote for you. So make sure you have your shit in writing that you did not vote, because they will vote for you, which will automatically deport you. So I don't know how you're going to secure your name and your identity, but I don't know, file a document in the local community that you're at or something, because that's what you have to do. You have to do that. You have to and if you terrify the illegals that are in this country that if you vote, you will automatically be deported, and we're talking about the non criminals. And then you tell them, hey, but by the way, just because you won't vote doesn't mean the Democrats won't vote for you, and you'll still be deported. Then you've got them mitigating so that the Democratic Party does not use their name to vote in their name. This is how you win. We win the migrants that have come through illegally, and if they want to be here and they want to work and live and enjoy America, they better fucking abide by the law so we can actually turn the table. Now, anyone here that's illegal has automatically broken the law. It's illegal. You cross the border illegally, but on the other hand, in a court of law just to burst your fucking bubbles with the narratives that they're being pushed right? They were brought in by federally funded programs. So you're fucked. Okay, I don't care what you say. You're fucked. If I'm the judge, think about it. You're the judge, and you have Maria Jose Consuela in front of you, and she's been working at your Arby's making nothing and living in an apartment with five other people working, and she's waiting, and she presents herself to court, because I came through the porter illegally, right? And I came with a program. The program said that I can come and work, and they were hiring, and they brought me here. That's all she says, and it's true, because it was your federal tax dollars and state tax dollars. Let's not forget Hot Wheels in Texas giving all this money to the NGOs. Okay, so think about it, and she's sitting there in the court. What judge will say? Well, you knew it was illegal. No, they told me that I can come even though I have no documents. They make my documents. You see where I'm going. You see where I'm going. So legally, you can't even kick them out, because they came here under the pretense that. But it was okay, and they were here through a program, so you're fucked. So anyone telling you you're not fucked is lying, but there will be such a mass deportation. One, because a lot of them will fucking vote. Two, there's a lot of criminals. And three, believe it or not, a lot of green card holders that are professors doctors. You know that think they're above the law because they're so academic, they're also getting deported. So if the GOP actually wanted to win under Trump, okay, actually wanted to win under Trump, the narrative would be, you're here. I can't get rid of you. And you know what, if you're good people, maybe I might not get rid of you, but I'll tell you what, if you vote in the elections, I don't give a shit how good you are. You could be Mother Teresa on steroids, as depicted by history, which was written by the winners. Whatever you can look like. You are the best saint. You could be wearing a white robe, and it could be unscathed. You're still gonna get fucking deported, because that's not okay. And by the way, if the Democrats vote for you without your permission, you're still getting deported. So you should protect your name. Done. And then hey for all of you green card holders, you know you academics that vote every fucking year, because if you actually pull your voting rolls and you check their names, find a professor that's a foreigner that has a visa here, that's here on a green card. Look them up. Garam fucking to you, they voted. So tell the green card holder all these academics that tell us how we should live our country and work, the ones that were shoving covid up our ass, you should tell them, hey, if you have a green card and you voted, you're getting fucking deported too. How's that and, you know, and if they're like, You can't do that. What if they vote? They should have the right to vote. This is going to be fun. You could be like, well, you know, if we win, the machines record everything you want, electronic machines, all I have to do is do a quick search. So since we're using machines and it's all digital, we could see it. But you know what the all digital means that Maria Jose consualis Rodriguez may not have voted, and it could have just been, you know, some staffer that did it on her behalf, or someone from ACT blue. Well, then I'm sorry. Maria Jose Consuela Gonzalez, you're getting the out because it's digital. So you know the records there, and I don't know, how do you prove that you didn't vote. Did you file a document saying I didn't vote before the elections to make sure so you don't get deported? Could you imagine if we actually push that? Could you imagine if we told all the illegals in this country right now, if you vote, you get deported. But here's the problem, the Democrats are going to vote for you, so you should all, if you're illegal, file a document in your local Secretary of State, keep the receipt of the letter, send it to them, it's $1 registered, and say I Maria Jose, consolidate Consuela Gonzalez will not be voting in any American elections period, signed, notarized. Thank you.

Send that off, because when we get the records and it says that Maria Jose Consuela Gonzalez voted and that document's not on file, then you're fucked and deported. If we did that, within 15 days, you will have every single illegal in this country filing a letter because they want to stay. The honest ones, the ones that thought that these were streets paved of gold, the ones that came because the NGO said it's going to be a better life, the ones that were coaxed to come more, the ones that were kidnapped, and they're too old to rape anymore, so they just threw them to the side. That's it. And actually, someone said on the chat just now, can't get anything notarized, with no idea. Actually, they have paperwork that they can present as identification because they're undocumented that they get at the border. So yeah, they they they can. So imagine if we swapped the tables around on them and told the illegals don't vote because you're going to get automatically deported. But here's the thing, you may not vote, but others will vote for you, and if they vote for you, since everything is digital and on these electronic system, they can't and they'll just put your name like you voted. You're screwed. And then it's like, oh my god. And it's gonna be like, Look, the laws deportation, that's what we're gonna do, don't don't vote. Don't vote. Write a letter and have that signed and sent in the mail with a receipt that you sent the letter and you said, No, I am not voting. It's game over. We just got the illegals on our fucking side. They actually want to stay in work that were either victims of human trafficking, coerced by NGOs, or just, you know, people that had nothing better to do. That's it. We flipped the fucking table and it's game over. That's it. It's just, that's it. And. Suddenly we're not vicious, we're not xenophobic, and we're like, okay, but they have to abide by the law that they can't vote in these elections, and because the Democrats want to cheat and everything's electronic, we can have all the names of every undocumented, illegal that's in this country that voted. Oh, and mind you, all the academics that vote with green cards too. Let's not forget them. I can't wait to see some of those guys get booted and deported. Oh, I could feel you guys shitting in your pants right now, and you should, because, remember, those are all electronic records. I can pull up the scan and see what you wrote into because, you know, secrecy and all. That's why we have that whole mixing of the votes in the counting software. So we don't know how you voted, but it's on the record with the Secretary of State. So dumb people are just that fucking stupid. So how do we do it again? You tell them, Don't vote. If you want to stay in this country, don't vote. If you vote, you're automatically deported. I don't care how good you are. And even if you don't vote, the Democrats are going to vote for you, since the electronic machines, we have all those records, and if they vote for you, you're also getting deported. So I suggest you mitigate between now and Election Day to make sure somewhere in your Secretary of State's office in the state that you reside, that you have documented your name and said, I came into the country undocumented on this day, I am not voting in any US election. Sign Maria Jose consuelas

Gonzalez. Consuela Gonzalez, and you sign it, you get that shit in order, right for free at the bank, because you're undocumented, they'll do it for you, and you're done. And suddenly the Democrats don't have the bodies to match the ballots. I mean, we got to find a solution, since we couldn't get it rid of the machines, because everyone's dragging their feet, we got all these idiots pushing for fucking harvesting votes when that's fucking illegal and it's the most atrocious thing I've seen. Let's stoop to their level, since they're doing it. That's what psychological operators do and their handlers, right? Good people say, All right, here's what happened. We got 50 million people here. We can't do shit about it. There's a lot of bad people. There's a lot of people that have been hurt, that brought in here from trafficking. There's a lot of people here that came here because they were coaxed with our federal tax dollars. So legally, we can't really kick them out, and it's not their fault. Then we have Haiti that's been ravaged. So you know the fact that people are so nasty against Haitian immigrants for just not culturally appropriating, considering they eat garbage and their kids are being snatched all the time, and they're actually occupied by another country. Makes me sick, right? And that's it. Or the illegal migrants can actually just email President Trump on communicate to 45 right? Office of 45 and say, Hi, my name is Maria Jose Consuela Gonzalez,

Mr. Trump, I will not vote in this election. Here is my document number. I'm waiting for court. Thank you. That's it. Then we have a big ass list of illegals that came through the border willingly or unwillingly, that broke the law, but again, your federal tax dollars paid for it, so it didn't really break the law. See how they trapped you. See how they fucking trap you. And then with Real ID, they fucked you even more. And we don't want real ID, do we? But now we're going to be stuck with it, because you know what? Here's here's what I'm going to tell you, if we don't do this, we don't do this. In the next few months, it will be you advocating for REAL ID. You will be begging the government for REAL ID. Do you know how I know? Because only the REAL ID will you know who's a criminal and who's not, and we have to make them all citizens now. Oh yeah, watch it. You're gonna be begging for real. We need it for security. We need to know who's here. They're all undocumented, and I don't know if they're a criminal. So everybody better get that real ID. See, you've been boxed the fuck in.

You have nothing. The only way out is to fuck the box and say, You know what you want that box? Well, I'm stepping out of that bitch, and I'm tell the illegals don't vote. That's automatic deportation, and the Democrats may vote for you. So mitigate that, put it in doc, in writing, that you're not going to get you, that you're not going to vote, and then we may not deport you. If you're not a criminal, we'll figure it out. You'll go to court. Normally, you came here paid with our tax dollars. We can't fucking send you off. And we'll give you a temporary green card. And in 10 years, we'll talk about citizenship.

Let's see how you do how's that? That's it. And if I was an illegal migrant, right? If I was illegal here, and I was getting 30 grand to buy a house, I'd be buying that motherfucking house. I would be working. My ass off, and I would be making sure no one is voting in my name because I got fucked. That's the way it is. I'm telling you, and I'm warning you now, if we don't change the narrative between now and the elections, you will all be begging for next generation identification, Real ID, to be air quote safe, and this is why the GOP tenant and other funding bases are funding the narrative that they're eating cats, they're savages, they're this. You should be very afraid. They're all rapists. See. You see that, and suddenly you're like, Fuck yeah. And now we're stuck. So now let's all get REAL ID, and suddenly you got everything you didn't want. And it's, the thing is, I didn't know how I missed that. See, I was looking at it, and I was like, Okay, well, this is going to cause this, but it's a it's the biggest ticking time bomb. So none, none of your GOP guys in your, hey, he's a good guy, are talking shit about this at all. Real ID deadline is May 7, 2025, right? That's what? Five Four. That's less than 10 months away. We're fucked.

You see, we're fucked because we need high security. We don't know who these people are. You see how the GOP works, they even massage it into their policy. Well, we need to know who these people are, so we need to make sure that you know, we know who they are, let's get that real ID going, because they know Trump is going to win. So their backup plan was that. And do you guys remember when I told you your DNA is going to be your ID? You see, when people are scared, right? They make stupid decisions, and they advocate for shit that fucks them up. And this is exactly what you're gonna do. You're gonna advocate for shit that will go against everything you believe. I mean, right now, here you are, you know, chastising one group of people for eating different food and acting different ways that were never put through any programs to acclimate. Like, I mean, first of all, they should, you know, tell these people, Hey, you don't go hunting in public. You know, you don't need people's cats on the street. Do that shit in private. Suggest you don't, because there's animal cruelty laws. So you'll get fucked. You know, just simple shit, like a list, you know, interpreters are free. The government pays something like $199 an hour for an interpreter.

I know I used to have all those contracts for multiple languages. I used to get paid bank and I got fired for that. So again, this is what we need to be pushing. We need to tell the illegals don't vote. That's automatic deportation. Oh, and by the way, maybe you should file some paper with whatever ID you have that says that you will not be voting in these elections before the elections, because if we find out you voted and someone voted for you, right, you're out. But they can argue. I was scared. I didn't want to put anything because Mr. Trump will deport me. See, this is why we need to come out. Hey, we won't deport you if you're a good citizen and you don't vote, and you make sure they don't vote for you, we'll take a look at it. I mean, you've got an extension for two years. You've been here right until your court date, so up until your court date, if you're okay, we could talk about it. You see, this is how you get it out. This is how you turn the table. Because when I'm telling you we're fucked, I mean it, and anyone telling you anything different, I mean, I'll tell you this, the military loves next generation identification. It feeds their AI for you know, the Minority Report database that Bill Barr built right before he left, it's already done. You're already on the system AI governs you, and you just don't know it yet. There's also rogue AI, good and bad. There's a big battle being fought and that people can't see, and no one's stopping the question, well, why are all these governments all up on their heels distracting us? Which, that doesn't make sense. It's like, you know, I saw people that are supposedly getting funded, all this money, talking about how the National Guard was building a a thing at Rikers Island. You're like, but that's not federal that's so weird. Um, so let me tell you this before I go. In closing, I ran into an undocumented, illegal migrant, right? And that person came from Eritrea, and so the person asked me for a lighter to smoke a cigarette. And we just started talking, and I was like, Where are you from? Oh, I'm from Eritrea. I was like, Oh, are you. Here on business. Are you here on vacation? No, no, no. I came here. He explained to me how a Catholic charity had come by his town, his village, listen carefully to what I'm telling you, that gave them options that they would sponsor them to either go to Europe or the United States of America. Now, if they wanted to go to the United States of America, they would have to go to a central or Southern American country where their counterparts of NGOs would pick them up and then bring them to the United States. And so the guy said, Well, you know, I he had a job. He said that he's like, I had a job, you know, but I wasn't making a lot of money. We had a couple goats on our farm. So, you know, we ate meat maybe once every three months, right? So it was a good conversation. And I said to him, you're here in this country, undocumented. You're illegally in this country. You entered illegally. He goes, Well, you know, it is illegal, but the they they paid for us to come. And I was like, Well, don't they ask you for money? He's like, yes, but it's the money they give us from Eritrea that we hand over to the people in in America, in the Americas. He said, where, when we get to the country that's going to be bringing us up here, we give them the money that they gave us from, you know, our home village. And I said, Well, how many people from your village have they taken? He said, Well, not everybody went. It was like, about 15. I was like, Why did you go? He goes, Well, because I was an orphan, and I had no family. And, you know, in my community, when you're an orphan, you know, people look at you different. I'll never get married those words. But those were his reasons. Okay, so the guy came with cash, by the way, from Eritrea to a country of the Americas, where they then handed they then met the person at the airport that was meeting all the people coming from the other countries. By the way, he said he had to wait in the airport with all the other people that that person was meeting with them, and then they took him to a building where they had, like bunk beds where they could sit, and they had lockers to put their things away, and then they had a hand over the cash, and they took their identification and said, From now on, you are undocumented. So he has no documentation. Listen carefully. The guy has no documentation of his passport the way he flew to the Americas and he had no records of anything. And he's like, so when they brought me to America, I was just doing whatever they told me, and that's what they told me to do. So I'm telling you what his story was. Over cigarette and I said, Aren't you terrified you're going to get deported? He goes, Well, they know that they can't deport me because they paid for it so and it's documented. They told me that. So most of these people that are here already know that legally we can't kick them out because of the way they did it. I'm telling you. I'm explaining this to you. So anyway, I then told him, holy shit. You know, this is worth the narrator, he goes,

Well, in Eritrea, you can kill someone, and you might or might not go to jail. If it's an argument, here you go to jail. Which is better, it's safer. And I said, Well, you know, what do you think of the president? He goes, President Trump, I love him. And I was like, but he's not the president. He goes, Yes, he is, ah. And that's where the conversation ended. Another one that I ran into was in Nashville, and it was a homeless guy. He was an addict. I'll tell you what the addicts that were selling. He stopped and asked me for cash. I didn't have any, but I had some money on my cash app, um, that, you know, people give me, I'll use that for coffee and food and stuff like that. So I was like, I'll buy you food. So he was with his girlfriend, who was weird that had like, you know, like, a bunch of tape on. And she was just, like, it was just a weird couple, tall, thin, white guy, big black female. They just, it was just weird.

But they were addicts, heroin addicts, and so I took him to the subway that was right by the hotel, and I said, get whatever you want. And they got drinks and sandwiches for now and later. And we were talking, and they couldn't wait for President Trump to get back into office, like we weren't talking politics. I just asked about, you know, her band aids. She said she went and gave blood, but she lost her Octa farm card. And I was like, girl, you shouldn't be doing that, but they needed money for food, and this is why I didn't give them money either. I mean, I could have went to the ATM, but I do know that addicts will go buy things, so all I have to do is buy them some food and make sure that they're nourished and buy them Gatorade so they're hydrated. That's what we should be doing. And that was a pretty interesting conversation. Conversation too, because guess what? The one guy, the really skinny guy, that was with the lady, he said to me that he's, he doesn't get on a phone, but when he has access to the internet, he knows he's like, this is a really like, he was a he was awake. And I was like, Damn, you're so awake. Get so drowned by, you know, the chase of heroin. But these people also want to vote for Trump, and these are Americans that are drug addicts and out on the street. So it was pretty, you know, interesting to see and also find out that the blood banks, and the plasma banks don't care if they're heroin users, and they'll just lie. So just saying, for all of you out there getting blood donations, blood products or plasma products, the majority of them are junkies that you know shoot up, so not best source of getting things. So just thought I'd bring that up, um, and please be kind. It doesn't take much to be kind, you know, I didn't have to. I was late for a meeting as always, because I couldn't get an Uber. It's like, the address that I was going to was completely blacklisted in Nashville. Like, I had to order, like, I think, like, four Ubers, and then when the other Uber came, I was like, Hey, buddy, if you drive fast, I'll pay you what I had to pay an Uber in cash too. How's that? And he went, he added three times to the fucking ride.

be kind, you know, be kind. And you know, when you know that someone's an alcoholic or a drug addict, and they ask you for money, you know, obviously don't give them any, because they'll go buy stuff, but you can buy them food or hygiene products. You know that that's something we can do. We can all do that. We could say, oh, I need shampoo, but maybe I'll buy two samples so I can give the other one, and it is free, and it is awesome. And those that know me know I do that all the time, I just don't say it, and they don't say it for you to be like, Oh, I tell you what I do, because I hope that people want to do what I do, right? And you know, the only thing I want people to do is think, really, just think for yourself. Stop listening to people that can't be. I mean, I'm still, I'm I'm not salty, but I'm like, shocked at the amount of money they make because they're not even worth it. Like, if it was worth it,

I'd be, like, whatever, right? Um, I wanted to share something with you before I go that I'd like you to try and experiment on, hold on. Let me get this. Want to download this file and share it to you. You know, actually, I think it's on on x I don't want to share it. But here's the thing, AI, as you know, puts up, you know, you put lyrics, it'll make music, or whatever. Well, I was having a listen. I was having a rant with someone. You could probably hear the words, and it was put into the software, and the AI made it a song. But here's the thing, not only did it make it a song, it gave the visuals for it. And what took me by surprise was that the visuals were very revealing, like revealing things about me that I've never spoken of, which means this AI has access to things I don't understand. So this is a song of me bitching about something to someone that was just put into the AI. And it was made a song because I was extremely salty, very, very bitchy, and this is an exchange of communications, so this wasn't intended to be a song. It was me bitching, and you'll hear what I'm bitching about, but I want you to see how AI functions in that sense. Because what was crazy was,

you know, it didn't say my name, didn't say anything about things that I've spoken about publicly, and it had visuals that are totally aligned with me, and I have never seen it, but you can hear me bitching. It's just me talking, not talking like my words that were typed where I was bitching to someone and complaining, you know, because of the, you know, crokins post, and I was going back, I'm a little salty on that, just a little bit, just tad bit of what I had to say. But I'm not, I'm not ashamed of being myself. So tough shit if nobody likes it. So let me share this with you before I go tomorrow. Don't forget, we have the Mars the Maris Odyssey. I will do it if I can, earlier than the alleged debate. Here we go. This is really creepy. I'm just gonna tell you. It was really, really, really weird. So here we go.

Psychology weaponized, the double edged. Hey guys, hey guys. Sorry about that.

Sorry. Hold on, a second.

Hold on, that was the wrong one. That was the wrong one. Hold on, let me get it to you. Give me a second. Give me a second, because that's the wrong one. And I thought I had done it correctly, but I guess I didn't let me see. Did it save let me see if it's safe. Sorry about that. I just saw that because I was trying to listen to what other people were listening to. Oh, it's downloading. Give me a sec.

It was you can't hear it through my headphones, damn it. Why is it doing this. Okay, I'm downloading this. I'm hoping that it's done. Let's see it's done.

Save As Okay, it's done. Okay, I got it, okay, sorry. I had it on the cloud. Give me a second. I'm sorry about that. And where is it? Okay?

It happened to me. That was a conversation. So here we go.

For years,

I've been collecting evidence, going back to 2020 documenting how I've been targeted to the point that I've been banned from using Google products. Despite the gravity of this situation, I remain outside certain circles, and it seems like nobody has cared to pay attention when my struggle may go unnoticed. That doesn't mean it's insignificant. What's happening now to others is a glimpse of what will eventually affect all of us, including our children in the future, it's striking to see those who once mock lawsuits and legal challenges now finding themselves taking the same path as they come to the realization that if it can happen to them, it can happen to anyone, it can happen to anyone. As I've always said, Some believe they're untouchable, like an animal farm where some animals are deemed more equal than others. It's a harsh reminder that no one is immune when the system comes after you. I can't help but feel frustrated, especially watching people who dismiss my struggles, and some even enjoyed it, but now grappling with the same issues I've faced for years, justifying the fact that it happened to others because they were more righteous and others were not as good as them. It states to see how I was left to defend for myself, and I won't deny the bitterness that comes with knowing no one stood up for me when I needed it most. But through this, I've come to a deeper understanding the truth doesn't need defending by the masses or propped up platforms, despite my bitterness over being overlooked and unsupported in the past by people with a platform, I still stand firmly behind their cause. I recognize that the Fight for truth and justice transcends personal grievances, especially when I have always supported them in their efforts, regardless of my own experiences, I believe in standing with those who are now facing the same battles I once did, their actions are important, and the cause is righteous, whether or not it aligns with my personal journey. In the end, it's about fighting for what's right, not for recognition or validation. As Liz says, people have lost their lives, both physically and not a physical. Death terminates your existence, your slandering, rumors and judgment by the masses, condemns you to a life of infamy and constantly trying to justify the wrongs that happened to you. There is an old adage, it's better you lose an eye, but your name be tasty. That is the most painful death of you as a person, your immortalized existence, dead and tainted and in the hands of those that commit to evil, always, this post may seem soft. It is. This post may seem salty. It is after having a conversation with people about her statement, I realize that we need to band together as a people and unite as a people. I will not apologize for being upset and hurt when all I have done is fight for things that are important for our future and our children's future, especially defending Wiz and her actions all be here. This post may come off as a jab. It kind of is pissed that I am circling legal items globally to see how we can come in and bolster her claims from another angle, knowing that the very people I am helping have had nothing good to say about me. Remember, I haven't gotten my account back either.

I'm being very open with this because I don't want people to misconstrue this as optics of what they heard her say about me or some other squirrely shit or conspiracy. It's high school lunchroom shit, and no one is exempt from actions and behavior like that. Mean Girls, good old. Boys, and it's as a social entrepreneur, I'm also trying to show you how we should all be looking at the challenges without the personal feelings in it. Remember, I had friends recording my conversations for years, working for the other side, pretending to be my friends. As a person outside of public eye, I am constantly being put through the wringer, but in no way does that mean that we allow you to run amok because we are salty and I am unapologetic about feeling like this. Remember, I have my social security number, my address posted. No one stood up for me. No one gives a fuck platform. But now that they have a problem making money, I'm supposed to give a fuck. She goes on about talking about how there's all the accounts and impersonating her and shit like that. They do that to me, but no one stood up for me. But she wants me to stand up for her, but I can't stand up to her, because if it's happening to her, which I know what's happening to me, it's happening to many others, and we need to stop it.

Okay, guys, that video, right? Even the beat, even the images just had my branding to my friend and literally paste into AI, and it got me so naked. Now, a lot of the images that you see you may not recognize, but I fucking do, and it was crazy, and it was talking about the whole Liz Crokin thing, right, where she's doing the lawsuit and all these things. And I know in private circles, she's not said very nice things about me, and that's fine. That's her choice. Because even what is that girl, Kydie, the defender of the Republic, she's like, people warned me about you, then you should be worried about them, because that's the problem. So, you know, she said bad things, and what I was saying is, you know, people are gonna be like, Oh, maybe it was optics that she was talking like that. No, it's fucking not. These people actually are in cliques. But that doesn't mean I don't support her fight the cause, you know at all. It doesn't mean that that's what I was trying to convey, you know, because there are a lot of people out there that have said really shitty things about me, that have gone into courts and won because I helped, and they don't even fucking know. So that was me ranting, but I just wanted to showcase to you, and you should try this. AI knows you better than you know yourself. It exposed me on a level. You can't even imagine my friend that knows me that well. When I was like, damn, all those words put in there gave that the imagery, the words and the anger, where it was like shit I could have composed that. Because I was like, Yeah, this town, I want to post this. It's kind of salty, but it fucking is, because I am salty, because when it, when that Guatemala thing went down, you know, I reached out to everyone, you know, who were the only people that talked about it was Sarah Carter and Robbie Starbuck. To save the children. Was her thing. Why didn't she talk about it when I reached out to her, Do you see where I'm going? Do you see where I'm going with this? So I'm not sorry that I'm upset. I can be upset. I have every freaking right to be upset. I've had people that pretended to be my friends when they're working for the side that you saw with the 5.6 million account, the anonymous. Well, when you see that you've been opt from all sides, they not only psychologically construct you, but they gaslight you too, which is even worse, right? And so again, AI is both incredible in aiding the human mind to expand and to be able to put connections where the mind wouldn't be able to go. You know, for at least 100 years, it'll do it in a minute, less than a minute, right? But on the other hand, it's also very dangerous, because anyone that really does know me that sees that video knows a hell of a lot more. So that's key, and the beat and everything. It was done completely by AI and I actually took the well, no Miguel did, took the video and put the gaslighting words to it for the gaslighting video. So I'm going to leave you with that. I I urge you guys to play around with it and see just how powerful you know it actually has access to information that you have no idea even exists in databases. And it's important for all of us to understand the power of artificial intelligence and its ability to connect to various things simultaneously and come up with whatever it is, an answer, a solution or anything. So I urge all of you to get to know it better, so that you understand. On this double edged sword. Remember, life is dupless, right? Duplicity isn't everything. Two strands of DNA, evil and good. You don't know good if you don't know evil. And this is why it's important that we understand how evil we can be, and that way we can avoid it. So on that note, enjoy your evening, and I'll see you guys tomorrow for the Marist Odyssey. God, bless.

God, we gives us life is beyond to build bridges and for in the embrace of unity, we find the strength to coexist. You see you do. Let us see let us heal the wounds of a world torn by needless fuse. For in the light of love embrace, We find our truth and sacred place. Look and by needless feuds. For in light of love's embrace, we find our true and sacred place, right?
